Woman's Precious Liberty
American Chichabs
Hoover's Pruning Knife
How to Cure the Baby

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MISS FANNIE HURST, creator of the "Breakfast-Once-in-Awhile-With-Your-Husband" Club, says woman's liberty is in danger.

Man-made fashions from Paris threaten her slowly-conquered right to bob her hair, drop her corsets, say "legs" instead of "limbs" and show a good deal of both to an admiring public.

"Bodily emancipation coordinates well with mental emancipation," says the talented young person.

All true, but reasonably short skirt limits would not be unwise.

A grandmother, for instance, might cut her skirt no lower than the knee, and young girls should remember that there is more charm in the mysterious unseen than in a butcher shop.

The "Agence John Wanamaker" opens headquarters in Paris at No. 44 Rue Des Petites Ecuries.

This American agency will engage in the purchase and sale of lingerie.

Its board of directors includes Miss Edith W. Cox, residing at Parc de Montretout.

In that address something appropriate will be discerned by those that have studied lingerie in store windows.

At a distance, only very tall mountains are visible. At a distance, in space or time, only the biggest men are visible.

The distinguished Russian painter, Roerich, recently returned from five years' travel in Mongolia, Thibet and China, says that Asiatics, as a rule, know only four American names OF MEN.

They are: Hoover, representing Government; Borah, representing relations with foreign countries; Rockefeller, representing wealth, and Ford, representing power.

"They do not think of Henry Ford as a man," says Mr. Roerich. "To them he represents motive power. They will ask you, 'Can Ford climb that mountain?'"

Mr. Roerich says the Chinese call Americans Chichab, which means "The Protector."

The heart of China, says Mr. Roerich, "is open to America."

The Government planned a topographic and geological survey of the United States, plans calling for work to last 80 years. When the program was presented to President Hoover, he cut the 80 years to 18 years. This shows that an engineer, who knows how things should be done, can be useful in the White House.

Women are more important than men, as the artist is more important than his picture. Women create the race and the big news for them today is this:

YOU CAN CURE A BABY OF THUMB SUCKING WITH A MIRROR.

Call a child from play, twice a day, make it look in a mirror for 10 minutes each time, with its thumb held in its mouth, and it will soon stop the habit. So says Dr. S. J. Lewis of Detroit. The child's psychology will do more than old-fashioned assafoetida rubbed on the thumb, or modern celluloid balls fitted over the thumb, too big for the mouth.

Thumb sucking causes malformation of the teeth, gums and jaws.

The "comforter," used by ignorant mothers as a substitute for the thumb, is harmful, also, exhausting the salivary glands. It is no easy task to raise a baby, or five or six of them.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a worthy high brow endeavor, included tragic poetry in its program. Mrs. Evelyn Mare Davis in a Kent village heard a sad poem—said to be by the Irish poet, James Stephens, and immediately committed suicide.

Her husband says, "It was some miserable poetry that killed her." An ancient painter produced a picture of fruit so perfect that birds tried to eat it. He was proud.

A tragic poet might consider a suicide after hearing his sad verse a tribute to his genius.

But the practical British say, "If you must broadcast poetry, select poems that will make people laugh, or at least make them happy."

G. B. Shaw asks, "Why not turn off the loud speaker?"

William Feather, who deals in "business philosophy," says, nobody makes good socially until he learns to look interested when he is bored.

According to eminent authority, the reverse is the case, at least in England. Says Mrs. V. A., who goes often abroad: "An Englishman in British society thinks little of an American if the American shows interest in what the Englishman says. Look horribly bored, making no comment on anything said, showing absolutely no interest.

M'DONALD TO URGE SEA FREEDOM

Leaves Washington for New York; Greets Philadelphia Friends on the Way

Washington, Oct. 10—Leaving behind him only good will, Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, said farewell today to the capital, where, within a week, he has made history.

Later they will go to Buffalo and Niagara Falls before again entering upon British soil for the Premier to confer with Premier McKenzie King of Canada, first of the Dominion prime ministers with whom he will consult on problems discussed in his conversations in Washington.

Statements issued jointly by the President and Mr. MacDonald and singly by the Prime Minister indicate that these problems cover a wide range and encompass that one which has been the source of recurring controversy for more than a century—freedom of the seas.

SEA FREEDOM FORECAST

An agreement on such freedom has been demanded by some Senators, particularly Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee as a prelude to any further naval limitation treaty.

Some government officers and naval authorities take the view that an accord on parity in naval strength agreed to by the President and the Premier as between the United States and Great Britain makes a solution of the problem easy.

5000 Invited to Lunch With MacDonald in N. Y.

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—A three-day program, including a luncheon, expected to be the largest in attendance ever given in this city, will greet Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald upon his arrival from Washington.

Tonight he will visit the home of Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Tomorrow at 1 o'clock the Premier will be the guest of the English Speaking Union at a luncheon in Hotel Astor. Arrangements have been made for 5000 guests and use of both ballrooms of the hotel. Later in the day he will attend a tea and reception by the Foreign Policy Association at Hotel Commodore.

In the evening he will speak at a dinner of the Council on Foreign Relations, Inc., at the Ritz Carlton.

Odds 10 to 4 on A's to Win

Philadelphia, Oct. 10—Baseball fans in this World Series town who have been on the verge of ecstacies over the double victory of the Athletics over the Cubs, found something to worry about today.

The weather man predicted rain as a possibility for Friday, the opening day here of the series, and the fans fear he may be right.

There is an unfavorable atmospheric condition hovering about in the offing, according to the forecaster, with cooler weather and lowering skies on tap for today. Philadelphia fans were betting 10 to 4 the Athletics would win the series and 10 to 8 the series would go only four games.

With the jubilant Athletics on their way home from Chicago ticket speculators boosted prices substantially. Two victories over the devastating Cubs, the speculators contended, put gold borders

THREE EX-COPS ARE INDICTED

The fact that secret indictments were returned against three former Cambridge police officers, recently dismissed from the department, was revealed today when they were arraigned in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court on charges of conspiracy to steal gasoline.

The former officers under indictment are: Frank Cotter, 31, married, of Raymond st., North Cambridge. He was appointed May 3, 1924.

John T. Burke, 36, married, of Berkshire st., Cambridge, appointed Nov. 5, 1922.

James J. McCarthy, 29, of Raymond st., North Cambridge, appointed May 3, 1925.

When court opened today the three ex-policemen arrived at court accompanied by their counsel, Atty. Patrick Delaney.

When their names were called each entered a plea of not guilty. Judge Fosdick ordered each man held in $2000 pending trial.

The indictments charge that the men conspired to steal a quantity of gasoline from the Main Street Garage, 600 Main st., Cambridge.

The dismissal of the men from the force and their subsequent indictment followed a report made by Patrolman John H. Falvey to Capt. John Canney. The latter preferred the charges against the three.

The indictments were reported after Dist. Atty. Bushnell had assigned a representative to investigate the case.

German Says He Made Gold From Lead

Munich, Germany, Oct. 10 (AP)—Franz Tausend, known as a professed alchemist, purported here to produce a tenth of gram of gold from 1.67 centigrams of lead.

Officials of the mint watched him carefully, but are not convinced he actually obtained the gold from the lead.

Indeed, feeling grew today that he had hoodwinked even the high officials of the State mint.

Louis Hill Quits Great Northern

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 10 (AP)—After 36 years of service to the road founded by his famous father, James J. Hill, Louis W. Hill of St. Paul offered his resignation today as chairman of the board of the Great Northern Railway.

Mr. Hill plans to devote most of his time hereafter to personal interests and those of his family.

The Boston Evening American will not be published on Columbus Day, Saturday, October 12.

DOWLING HURLS BACK CHARGE AT ALLEN

Insists He Was Called to the Governor's Office Over Exchange St. Affair

John C. L. Dowling, who failed of reappointment as chairman of the Finance Commission, today reiterated his charge that he was called to the office of Gov. Allen just after the public hearings on the Exchange st. widening had begun.

He said he was summoned by the Governor's secretary, John D. Wright and the Exchange st. widening and the "mayor's father-in-law" were the two principal subjects discussed.

In a statement following the appointment of Frank A. Goodwin to succeed him, Dowling said his refusal to be diverted from the Exchange st. deal was the reason for his failure to be reappointed.

Governor Allen and Secretary Wright both denied the charges, the secretary characterizing them as a falsehood. The Governor said he did not reappoint Dowling because he lacked capacity and ability.

DENY RESIGNATIONS

Dowling's latest statement was issued after Courtenay Guild and John F. Moors had denied they intended to resign from the Finance Commission out of loyalty to the chairman.

Dowling said in his latest statement:

"On March 15, 1929, the first public hearing of the Finance Commission on the Exchange st. widening took place.

"Preceding the opening of the investigation this office was besieged by telephone calls from reporters of various papers asking

'We Will' Endurance Fliers on 11th Day

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP)—The "Chicago We Will" came within striking distance of its own refueling endurance record when it passed the 240-hour mark and sailed into its 11th day at 6:52 a. m. today. In its last previous endurance flight, the plane stayed aloft 291 hours.

A cold wind from off the lake and lower temperature caused the two mystery pilots late yesterday to ask for warmer clothing, which was dropped to them from the refueling plane. The plane's motor was functioning perfectly, field attaches said.

Hub Fugitive Heads Back

J. Philip Hatch, who has eluded police for three weeks, is reported today on a boat destined for New Orleans from Havana. He is charged with larceny of $120,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia of Boston. (Photo by Oppenheim.)

Hatch on Boat Bound for New Orleans

Having eluded detectives at Honduras and presumably at Havana, J. Philil Hatch, alleged Boston bank looter, was today aboard a steamship bound from the latter city for New Orleans.

Hatch has been hunted three weeks for the alleged larceny of $120,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia of Boston.

Information as to his whereabouts was received at the State House today from the adjutant general at Washington. It was not indicated that he was in custody aboard the boat, the name of which was not given, and attaches of the attorney-general's office expressed the opinion that he was still at liberty and had been only traced aboard the steamer.

It was revealed for the first time that Hatch was trailed to Honduras but eluded the authorities there and reached Havana.

State and Boston police were in a quandary as a result of the information. They were awaiting details from Washington and in the meantime [illegible] New Orleans police to meet the boat from Havana and arrest the fugitive.

As president of the Hatch Stevens Co., Inc., and of the Hatch Distributing Co., produce brokerage concerns, Hatch is alleged to have bankrupted the companies, swindling his partner, Frank H. Stevens, and his stenographer, Miss Agnes Quinn of Taunton, who is said to have given him $8000 to invest.

By manipulation of checks he is alleged to have obtained $120,000 from the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Hatch is a member of the Union Club, Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co., and the Boston Athletic Association. His home is in Brookline.

22 ON COLDEST DAY OF FALL

Residents of Greater Boston awoke to the coldest weather of the season today, with the official mercury generally below 30 and in some cases, down to 22.

To the man on the street, however, it was much colder and those who have not yet started heater fires muttered dolefully as they greeted the new day in frigid bedrooms.

Following yesterday's unusual cold, with the mercury the lowest in Boston on that date since [illegible], the mercury began to drop during the night and, in the early hours struck new depths.

Concord, Mass., and Concord, N. H., both reported official minimums of 22, with the same figures for Burlington and 25 for Lexington. The Concord minimum was within two degrees of the coldest weather for the month last year, and was one degree colder than yesterday.

A reading of 26 was recorded in the Blue Hills, and it was 26 at the Melrose Highlands railroad station at 7 a. m.

Four Burned in Power Plant Explosion

Providence, Oct. 10—Four men were seriously burned about their heads and the entire city was without electric current for more than an hour when a short circuit of wires caused an explosion in the distributing compartment of the Narragansett Light & Power Co. today.

The four men, all of whom narrowly escaped death by electrocution, were reported as suffering from second degree burns on the head at the Rhode Island Hospital.

Elevators in the larger buildings were stopped instantly between floors, factories were forced to suspend operation because of a lack of power and office buildings, railroad stations and other places were without lights.

According to officials of the Narragansett Co., the explosion occurred when one of the men dropped a supposedly dead wire across ground leading to other live wires in the building.

Persons attracted to the scene by the roar that followed were greeted by sheets of blue flame and the sight of the four men in the building attempting to find an exit. All of the men will recover.

DEPOSED LIQUOR SQUAD HEAD SEEN AT HOME OF JEAN PARKER, MEDFORD

The name of Patrolman Oliver B. Garrett, who is to face a departmental trial that may result in his dismissal, was today linked with the white slave inquiry resulting from the murder of Samuel Reinstein.

Announcement was made that Garrett, deposed head of the headquarters liquor squad, was seen entering the house of Jean Parker, alias Josephine Delfino, shortly before her arrest by federal officials and Medford police.

It was also stated that an automobile registered in the name of a relative of Garrett was parked near the Strathmore rd., Medford, house of Jean Parker the night before her arrest.

It was in the possession of this woman, said to have conducted one of the "white slave" resort houses, that the telephone numbers of Boston police officials, some of them unlisted, were found.

FLED FROM HOUSE

It was also revealed that immediately before the Sunday morning raid that resulted in her arrest a member of the Boston police department, not Garrett, escaped from her house, despite the fact it was under surveillance.

Jean Parker was charged with conspiracy to violate the Mann Act by federal officials, and by Medford officers was accused of a statutory offense and with receiving and larceny of property stolen from a Boston rug firm.

Police said the Parker woman operated one of the most remunerative houses of ill-repute in the South End, and that it had been impossible to obtain convictions against her in court.

Coincident with the Garrett revelations, Police Commissioner Wilson denied that he had forwarded his resignation to Gov. Allen.

"How many times are you going to ask me that question?" he shouted. "I have not forwarded my resignation and I have no intention of doing so."

Garrett went to the courthouse today and conferred with Attorney Herbert F. Callahan in one of the corridors. The policeman refused to make any statement but Callahan said he would go to headquarters and enter an appearance as counsel for Garrett.

The former head of the liquor squad then entered the Superior Court judges' lobby, where he remained for some time, after which he left the building.

FACES THREE CHARGES.

His departmental trial has been set for next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and it is considered probable that a special trial board will be appointed to hear the charges against him.

The complaint is based on disobedience in three counts, namely:

That on August 20 he failed to report punctually and completely to Lieut. John McGrath, temporarily in charge of Station 3, as ordered in connection with statements in the newspapers that he would "blow the lid off" the police department.

That on September 4 at his home in Parkvale ave., Allston, he failed punctually and completely to report to Capt. James F. McDevitt, his commanding officer, who called on him, an accident at Marshfield Fair on August 22, in which he was injured.

That on September 30 he refused on demand of Capt. McDevitt at the Joy st. station to report on the Marshfield Fair accident.

It was learned that on August 20 Garrett was called to Station 3

U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle then moved for immediate imposition of sentence and the banker was sentenced to the Atlanta penitentiary.

Guymon, Okla., Oct. 10 (AP)—Shattered by a premature explosion of a bomb during a stunt flight at the county fair here an airplane crashed to the ground from an altitude of 500 feet, killing J. Jimmy (Mile high) Bethel, 30, of St. Joseph, Mo., and dangerously injuring John Noonan, Guymon, the pilot.

by Lieut. McGrath on orders of Superintendent Crowley that he get a report on the alleged statement regarding "blowing off the lid." With another man Garrett visited the station and filed a report.

Next day at the Marshfield Fair, where Garrett was driving in trotting races, Lieut. McGrath appeared with the Marshfield chief of police. He told Garrett he had failed to ask him one question, which he propounded, and the former liquor squad head answered it.

INJURED AT MARSHFIELD

The following day Garrett was injured in one of the races and from that time on he was not in direct communication with any police official until September 4, when Capt. McDevitt went to his house on orders of Commissioner Wilson and Supt. Crowley.

At that time Capt. McDevitt said: "I'm here to get a report of the accident at Marshfield Fair, and under police regulations you must file such a report in 48 hours or you cannot get compensation while you are off duty."

Garrett asked if that was the only reason for the visit and Capt. McDevitt said it was.

"I'll waive my right to any compensation," said Garrett.

GETS MONTH'S LEAVE

On Sept. 20 Garrett was granted leave of absence to Oct. 18. On Sept. 20 he went to Station 3 and filed a petition for retirement and pension based on injuries received in a Back Bay automobile accident while on duty.

At that time Capt. McDevitt said: "As your commanding officer I now order you to write a complete report of the accident at Marshfield Fair."

Garrett replied: "You told me when you came to my home that if I wanted to waive compensation rights a doctor's certificate in regard to my illness was all that was necessary."

McDevitt: "I order you now to file that report."

Garrett: "No. I'll stand on the advice of my doctor and attorney."

MURIEL FOLEY COMING

Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert Thompson admitted today that Muriel "Mickey" Foley, who made revelations concerning white slave activities on the Canadian border, was on her way to Boston, coming voluntarily.

It was learned, however, that federal officials were in White River Junction, Vt., waiting for the girl with subpoenas for her appearance in federal court.

It was also known that federal summonses had been served on several important witnesses for appearance in the federal building today in connection with the white slave inquiry.

It is understood Federal officials have completed the gathering of evidence against two principals in the white slave ring, concerning interstate transportation of white slave and immigration cases.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle was informed by Inspector Timothy Donovan, now in New York, that he has at least one sample of the handwriting of one of the two men who registered in the Hotel Huntington the week of the Reinstein murder and who are believed to be the slayers.

STRIKE OF 2500 ON HUB DOCKS THREATENED

Clerks, Checkers and Longshoremen Meet Tonight to Consider Walkout

A probable strike of 2500 longshoremen, clerks and checkers—far more serious than the walkout of last August—threatened today to tie up shipping in Boston harbor.

Officials of three locals affiliated with the International Longshoremen's Union and of the affiliated steamship clerks' union will meet tonight to consider a strike order that would call out every union clerk and longshoreman along the Boston waterfront.

The dissension among the union men is the outgrowth of the trouble in August when more than 300 longshoremen and clerks engaged in a peaceful walkout as a demonstration against the Jarka Corporation and the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co.

The use of hide carts in place of two-wheel trucks for the unloading of wool caused the walkout. All except eight of the steamship line clerks, affiliated with the longshoremen, joined the longshoremen.

The unions demand the discharge of the eight clerks and have refused them renewal of their union cards.

Dowling Hurls Back Charges at Allen

whether or not the Governor had interceded in the investigation.

PLANS TRIP ABROAD

"On March 16, 1929, I was summoned to the governor's office by Mr. Wright, his secretary.

"No reason for my being summoned was given, but I was called there and was there just after the Exchange st. public hearings had begun; and that and the mayor's father-in-law were the principal subjects discussed.

"If I was not summoned to the governor's office because of the Exchange st. matter, what was I summoned for?"

Chairman Dowling indicated that his plans for the future are vague, but that he probably will take a trip to Europe soon.

Previous to the Dowling statement, the associate members of the commission present at a meeting today issued the following announcement:

PRAISED BY ASSOCIATES

"The duties of the commission are twofold.

"First, to study and recommend improvement in the city government.

"Second, to discover wrongdoing and thus prevent its recurrence.

"While the commission has no executive power and no power to prosecute wrongdoers, it has very great power to discover facts.

"For nearly a quarter of a century it has striven to use this power for the public benefit, without fear or favor. For 20 years Mr. Dowling has served the city with sincerity, integrity, zeal and courage above all praise. He has throughout been a true crusader.

"The associate members stand ready to put their experience at the service of the new chairman in a spirit of entire good will.

"Though at times the way has seemed dark, they know that vast good has been accomplished, and they remain confident that the people want what is right and that in the long run it will prevail."

Judge Sheehan, the fourth associate member, was out of town.

In a statement following the appointment of Goodwin to succeed him, Dowling blamed his refusal to be diverted from the investigation of the Exchange st. deal as the reason for his failure to be reappointed. His statement said:

"My term as chairman of the finance commission expired today. The governor did not reappoint me. It was no surprise to me.

"On March 15, 1929, just as I got important evidence in the Exchange st. widening case, I was summoned to the governor's office and while the governor sat in one room denying that he had sent for me, Mr. Wright, his secretary, in another room, in veiled and covert language threatened me about exposing public mean.

ALLEN "WITH GANG"

"I refused to be diverted from my investigation of the Exchange st. deal. Neither money, nor influence, nor friendship, nor loss of office could deter me from exposing the facts in the Exchange st. widening. Herbert F. Winslow, Channing Cox, Daniel G. Wing, and Malcolm E. Nichols were important witnesses summoned publicly in this investigation. I make no further comment.

"When I took the office of chairman, only at the direct request of ex-Gov. Fuller, I knew that the alliance of the gang in Boston with the incoming state administration was complete. For 21 years I have stood for honesty and integrity in public affairs. The forces of good and evil are now sharply defined.

The governor of this great Commonwealth has taken his place on the side of the gang. So let it be. The governor has served notice on the citizens of Boston that his friends must be let alone. No man's job in the public service is now safe."

Governor Allen immediately issued the following reply:

"I never discussed the Exchange st. widening investigation with Mr. Dowling nor have I even suggested to Mr. Wright or anyone else that this be done. I did not reappoint Mr. Dowling because I felt that he lacked the capacity and ability to properly handle this important position, and because a much better man in my opinion was available.

"His statement, which has just been read to me, shows such a wilful disregard of the truth as to reveal his unfitness for this position. It vindicates my judgment in deciding to make a change."

JILTED TYPIST PLANNED A TRIP 'ROUND WORLD

Mrs. Sanctuary "Engaged" to Rich Realty Man Before Getting Divorce

Providence, Oct. 10—Mrs. Grace L. Sanctuary, typist, who is suing her former employer, Edwin F. Cary, realtor, for $200,000 breach of promise, was today taken in hand for cross-examination in Superior Court by Atty. Thomas C. Cooney.

While her two daughters, Jane, 10, and Harriet, 13, listened, the 44-year-old mother who divorced their daddy in order that she might be free to marry her employer, was grilled about all her alleged clandestine meetings with the realtor.

"Isn't it true that when you became engaged to Mr. Cary you had not been divorced from your husband, Harry I. Sanctuary?" she was asked by Atty. Cooney.

"Yes," she replied.

PLANNED WORLD TRIP

In concluding her direct examination Mrs. Sanctuary testified that on April 15, 1923, Cary gave her a vanity case and discussed their proposed world tour honeymoon.

"I told him I thought the honeymoon trip would be too expensive, and he replied, 'Don't worry about that; I am a millionaire realtor and when we are married you will not want for anything.'"

Asked what Mr. Cary's conduct toward her was during the course of their friendship, she replied: "From the time I first met him until the end he was a gentleman in every sense of the word."

She testified she married Henry I. Sanctuary October 31, 1911, and divorced him in 1925. She last heard from him in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., last year.

WROTE HER FROM CAMP.

One of the high spots in today's direct examination of Mrs. Sanctuary was the reading of a letter written to her by Cary from a camp in Kennebago, Me., June 24, 1923.

He addressed her as "Dear Mrs. Sanctuary" and signed it "Cordially, M. M." She did not explain what the initials meant.

and the Englishman will think you must be somebody important." Take your choice.

Prohibition and its enforcement may soon enter upon a new phase.

It seems probable that buying liquor will be made a crime, according to Senator Sheppard's plan. Congress, if it dared, would refuse to take prohibition so seriously, endangering alcoholic habits of the respectable classes. But the board of temperance of the Methodist Church, which usually gets what it wants, demands that the Sheppard bill be made law.

If that happens, the voice of respectability bragging about its reliable bootlegger will be heard in the land less frequently.

London vandals have tarred and feathered Epstein's statue of the Bird Woman, Rima, erected in Hyde Park.

To tar and feather Rima is waste of time with the other Epstein statue of Day and Night exposed in plain view.

In any case public indignation should be directed, not at the "artist" or his works, but at those guilty of displaying them in public.

YD VETERANS DEDICATE WAR MEMORIAL CHURCH IN BELLEAU

NOTABLES OF FRANCE AT CEREMONY

Gen. Sherburne Makes Presentation; Gen. Gouraud Voices Appreciation

Belleau, France, Oct. 10—In the presence of the entire population of this town and many notables, 300 members of the 26th Division, A. E. F., today dedicated the reconstructed Belleau church as a memorial to their comrades who fell on their hardest battlefield.

Gen. John H. Sherburne, who commanded the artillery brigade of the division, in a simple ceremony turned over the keys of the church to the mayor of Belleau.

Then Mgr. Mennechet, bishop of Soissons, blessed the building and Abbe Combes, for 30 years parish priest of the village, said mass.

CHURCH GIVEN COLORS

At the conclusion of the mass, Gen. Sherburne presented Abbe Combes with the colors of France and of the United States, in behalf of the division, to be preserved as a reminder of the great battle.

Gen. Gouraud, one-armed French war hero, who visited the United States last spring, spoke a few words of appreciation, and Gen. Sherburne then announced the establishment of the Franco-American Belleau Memorial Society.

He pointed out that the church, a faithful reproduction of the structure destroyed by the guns of enemies and allies during the war, was reconstructed with funds raised entirely by the 26th Division, the members of the Division Association, each contributing the equivalent of one day's salary.

Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, who commanded the 26th Division in France, followed Gen. Sherburne with a brief speech.

EDWARDS ELOQUENT

"Over the shell-torn hills and fields of Belleau we made the dash that drove the enemy away from Paris," Gen. Edwards said. "It was the victory that was won here that Marshal Foch has described as the turning point of the war. We cherish his credit, his tribute to our division when he dedicated the adjoining woods.

"That victory meant almost a complete destruction of your town. To us it meant the loss of thousands of our comrades, many of whom you have religiously guarded for us close by. Wars are won by destruction. Today we come to you, not to destroy, but to offer you that which we have builded from the smouldering ashes we left behind in 1918.

"We return to you your place of worship, at which our own guns were aimed over a decade ago to rout out the enemy. The presentation of this church which we are here to dedicate is but a symbol—a symbol of the feelings, the thoughts, the memories, the aspirations we share in common."

POILUS ATTEND.

In addition to the residents of Belleau, about 300 persons, the guests included Admirals Guepratte and Benet, together with representatives of President Doumergue, Premier Briand, Minister of War Painleve and Minister of Marine Leygues.

The Americans, wearing their war uniforms, marched up to the church and formed a hollow square around the 67th regimental band. They were flanked by detachments of French infantry, Republican Guards and veteran poilus.

Lord Mayor of Berlin Unmoved by Charges

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP)—Dr. Gustav Boess, Lord Mayor of Berlin, who has been in communication with the Berlin City Council in connection with a contract scandal here, does not consider it advisable to cut short his visit to the United States.

LABOR IS HAILED AS A PARTNER

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 10 (AP)—Relation of labor and capital in the railroad field came up for particular attention today as the proceedings of the American Federation of Labor resumed.

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, opened the discussions.

"Improvement in the position of the masses has been the outstanding achievement of civilization," Sir Henry said, "but progress has by no means concluded.

The future relationship will be that of partners, between workers and employers. The brains and muscle which guide the wheels of industry are worth as great attention as the materials which make up its fabric.

PLAN IS SUCCESS

"No enterprise can be successful unless it has contented workers. With the acceptance of the partnership principle will come the greatest prosperity."

On the Canadian National Railways, he said, "co-operation had become the greatest asset." He mentioned endeavor on the Baltimore & Ohio in the United States for co-operation between management and unions which had furnished example, involving complete recognition of unions in shop crafts.

In Canada, he said, the plan was being extended to maintenance of way and train operation and had proved an unqualified success.

IS LABOR'S OPPORTUNITY

"The great constructive work of labor organization lies in these larger policies," he said. "The power of labor carries with it obligation to build.

"Labor and capital will make their greatest contribution to civilization in establishment and propagation of the partnership theory to banish contention and establish tranquility. This is an opportunity for labor to grasp the torch."

WOMAN IN WILD RIDE AFTER THIEVES

Leaps on Auto Bumper in Effort to Capture Two Men, but Is Hurled Off

In a brave but futile effort to bring about the capture of two short-change thieves a plucky woman rode the bumper of their automobile through crowded Chestnut st., Quincy.

The driver, by a sudden jerk at the wheel, threw the woman off her perilous perch into the street. She was uninjured.

An insurance man who joined the woman in her novel plan to catch the offenders and sat on the other end of the bumper, was likewise thrown off as the machine gained more speed. He was severely injured. The thieves escaped.

The woman is Mrs. Herbert Keane, night cashier of Johnson's Restaurant in Quincy sq., and the man who came to her assistance is Charles H. R. Spinney, manager of the Quincy office of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

MISSED $10

According to the police, two well-dressed men walked into the Johnson restaurant and in payment for a 10-cent purchase one of them tendered Mrs. Keane a $20 bill. In some manner the man managed to take an extra $10 bill in change.

Mrs. Keane did not notice the shortage until a few minutes after the men left the store. She immediately put another girl in charge of the cashier's cage, threw on her wraps and hurried across the street, where she saw the men step into the Quincy Market, in front of which the automobile was parked.

When the men came out of the market, Mrs. Keane confronted the man with whom she did business and demanded that he return the missing $10. After some discussion he pulled out his pocket book and gave the $10 to the cashier.

TRIES TO BALK GETAWAY

Believing the men dangerous persons to be lurking in the vicinity, she took up a stand in front of the men's car and demanded that they wait until a police officer came in sight. While she stood in front of the machine Spinney walked on the scene.

After hearing the woman's story, Spinney decided also to prevent the men from departing until the matter could thoroughly be thrashed out with a police officer.

When the driver started the motor, both Mrs. Keane and Spinney sat down on the front bumper and clung on to the mudguards. The car started and carried its two extra passengers several feet along Chestnut st.

Mrs. Keane fell off, picked herself up and ran to a nearby telephone, where she notified the police. Spinney finally was thrown off into the gutter as the car picked up more speed.

'Obey' in Marriage Dropped by Church

New York, Oct. 10—The revised Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant-Episcopal Church has been issued, after 15 years' work by the committee on revision. The draft of the book was ratified a year ago by the church authorities.

Some of the more outstanding changes from the old prayer book are: Omission of the word "Obey" from the woman's promise in the marriage ritual and the omission of the statement "With All My Worldly Goods I Thee Endow" from the man's promise.

In the service for the visitation of the sick phrases linking the patient's illness with wrath of God are omitted.

The Holy Communion office has been rearranged and modern English employed.

The commission was appointed to revise the prayer book in 1913 and consisted of seven bishops, seven presbyters and seven laymen. Their mandate was to consider and report "such revision and enrichment of the prayer book as will adapt it to present conditions if, in their judgment, such revision be necessary. Provided, that no proposition involving the faith and doctrine of the church shall be considered or reported upon by the commission."

Los Angeles, Oct. 10—Three former employes of Alexander Pantages were called as prosecution witnesses today in the trial of the 54-year-old theatrical magnate on a statutory charge preferred by Eunice Pringle, 17, dancer.

W. C. [illegible], prosecution witness, will be attacked in an effort by defense attorneys to impeach his testimony on the ground that he is a fugitive from justice in Texas on 10 felony counts and that his testimony for the state was influenced by that fact.

Testimony of Jim Sheridan, a San Diego resort [illegible], provided one of the most exciting days of the trial. Sheridan, a surprise witness, said Pantages approached him with a proposition to get two women and a man, in addition to himself, to give testimony directed at the character of Miss Pringle.

Sheridan testified he brought from Tia Juana, Mexico, two women and a man to be used as witnesses and that Pantages had given him money on several occasions to "keep witnesses in line."

Worse Crimes Than Rum W. C. T. U. Told

Bangor, Me., Oct. 10—The Women's Christian Temperance Union opened the second session of its State convention here cognizant of a gentle criticism of its attitude on the enforcement of laws, particularly those unrelated to prohibition.

Welcoming the delegates, Mayor John H. Wilson urged the organization to realize that "there are other and worse crimes than the use or sale of liquor."

In declaring that he "would rather see an honest man in office who perhaps sometimes uses alcohol as a beverage, than a dishonest one who does not," Mayor Wilson added:

"You people so strongly against liquor are not yourselves always consistent. I have heard women talk loudly against liquor and the next moment boast or laugh at some breach of the traffic laws they have accomplished without detection.

"You can't choose what laws you will obey unless you give the right to others. Nor can you place an undue importance on that particular law that appeals to you unless others may do the same."

Resolutions were adopted commending President Hoover "for his outspoken stand for law enforcement" and pledging support to state and national candidates "who by precept and example stand squarely for total abstinence and prohibition and its enforcement."

SENATE LOBBY PROBE OPENS TUESDAY

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Senate lobby investigating committee decided today to begin its public hearings Tuesday.

Chairman Caraway of the committe was authorized to issue subpoenas for witnesses, but no decision was reached as to the first persons to be called.

Caraway has said he desired Joseph R. Grundy, Washington representative of the American Tariff League, as the first witness.

"We are going first into the lobby on the tariff bill," Caraway said. "We are going to get a list of those gentlemen who sat around so close that no one could get his breath while the tariff measure was being framed."

Caraway added that Charles L. Evanson, a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, who was employed by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, a Republican member of the finance committee, to assist him on tariff matters, would be given "full opportunity to explain his double salary."

Asked if Evanson could be prosecuted for drawing a private salary while on the government payroll, Senator Caraway said there was a law providing for a fine and imprisonment for any government employe accepting private pay, "but I am not passing judgment on this case."

CLEAR ACTOR IN DEATH CASE

London, Oct. 10 (INS).—A coroner's jury today returned a verdict that Alfred Oliver, tobacconist, in connection with whose death Philip Yale Drew, an American actor and former Massachusetts resident, was questioned at length, was "murdered by a person unknown to the jury."

Oliver was beaten to death in his tobacco shop on June 22.

A number of witnesses testified they had seen a man closely resembling Drew acting strangely in the neighborhood of the tobacconist's shop soon after the murder.

No charges were made against Drew. His attendance at the inquiry was purely voluntary.

The verdict of the jury was received with cheers by spectators who had been hissing Drew since his first appearance at the inquest.

MacDonald Always Man of the People

Editor Boston American:

I have been very much interested in your editorials and also the information that you have been giving to the people in the last week or ten days concerning Ramsay MacDonald. You are doing something that I hope you will continue to do, namely, pointing out to the people that Ramsay MacDonald, while he wears a high hat most becomingly, is first, last and always a man of the people and is working for an everlasting peace. Lauds Free Concert by Revere Veterans

Editor Boston American:

I think it is a wonderful thing for Revere Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, to give a free concert on October 23 to the 250 crippled and deformed children at Massachusetts Hospital school, as outlined in your newspaper. When the children hear the United States navy band of Washington, 60 musicians, it will be a great treat. Acts such as this produce a wealth of good will. There should be more acts of this kind by persons who have more money than they will ever be able to spend. J. E. W.

Shouldn't Own Car Without Garage

Editor Boston American:

I was pleased to read a story in the Boston American recently that the Brighton police tagged 96 automobiles parked in the courtyard of an apartment house in that district during the course of a fire. When will the police of every part of Greater Boston conduct a real campaign and prevent parking of cars in the rear of apartment houses and in alleys? If they don't, the time will come when this real fire menace will result in the deaths and injury to persons because of inability to get fire-fighting apparatus into action quickly. The person who can't afford to put his car in a garage should not own one. P. R.

Peace Should Be Armistice Keynote

Editor Boston American:

A movement in Boston and New England is gaining support from various organizations to observe Armistice Day, November 11, with peace demonstrations as the keynote of the occasion, with less display of army and navy equipments.

While the promoters of this feature of Armistice Day do not want to detract from the importance of the army and navy demonstrations, they feel that Armistice Day should mean more than the mere display of war implements without any great emphasis upon the Kellogg peace pact and its teachings. We ought to begin this time to give some prominence to peace measures in the observance of Armistice Day. A SOLDIER.

Tells Collectors to Watch Antiques

Editor Boston American:

In answer to your correspondent about antique furniture, let me impress this point upon him with more than usual emphasis: Don't buy anything antique that does not date back more than 100 years. There is much junk being passed upon buyers of this kind in Massachusetts and neighboring States.

There is one year, 1820, a period that should govern all buyers. You must remember that the best mahogany is in the later 18th and 19th centuries. New England offers unusual opportunities of studying good antiques at the Peabody Museum, Salem, or the Pendleton collection, Providence. The American wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art yields peculiar advantages in this respect. G. A. H.

Warns of Evils of Overeating

Editor Boston American:

There are double the number of restaurants in Greater Boston than there were two years ago. People are eating more under prohibition than ever before. This is just commonplace, but there are more cases of the evils of overeating than ever before, if we are to accept what physicians are telling us.

One of the most dreaded of all diseases is now increasing everywhere and some of the practitioners are claiming that overeating is, to some degree, paving the way for the advance of this malady.

Up over a small store on one of the streets leading out of Tremont st., in the busy section of Boston, at an outlay of about $25,000, a place has been put in condition for serving meals. If people continue to overeat, we may expect that they will be victims of diseases that spring from dyspepsia.

Flappers Organize for Independence

Editor Boston American:

A number of us girls have organized a club in the interests of so-called "Flappers." I am not going to tell our name. That is a secret. No girl must tell the name of our club but she can talk all day about our principles.

If we are willing to be called flappers, we will stand by that name, for we want more independence. We are not clinging vines, a tinkling cymbal nor sounding brass. We don't want to be judged by what we wear, how our hair looks and how short the skirt may be.

These matters do not bother us. We want our independence. "Oh, she's nothing but a flapper," grates upon our feelings. We are going to soft pedal that talk. Young men are not handicapped as we young women are. We want more freedom. We want to be ruled by what we think and not by what others serve to us in talks and sweet advice. We are tired of sweet advice. We have fourteen members, many of them in college. Watch for us.

SEE DEFEAT OF PHILIPPINE AMENDMENT

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Senate today rejected the amendment to the tariff bill which would have declared this country's intention to grant independence to the Philippines soon and called an international conference to agree to respect that independence.

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—An assault on the Broussard Philippine independence amendment to the tariff bill was begun in the Senate today at the outset of debate and progressed with such momentum as to indicate a defeat such as that dealth the King proposal.

The amendment would request the President to invite other governments to send representatives to a conference to consider an agreement to "respect the independence and territorial integrity of the Philippines."

Opening the opposition, Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, said the proposal on its face was "ridiculous." He would not vote for it, he said, because in the first place it had "no business" in the tariff bill.

WALSH OPPOSED ALSO

Barkley said he had voted yesterday for the rejected amendment of Senator King, Democrat, Utah, which would have granted independence after a constitutional convention had set up a form of government in the islands, adding he favored independence, but doubted the propriety of such a question being injected into the tariff debate.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, also opposed the amendment, saying it was entirely unnecessary.

Senator Vandenburg, Republican, Michigan, offered a resolution to investigate the advisability of applying American coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines. The Michigan senator declared the islands enjoy an emphatic economic advantage over this country amounting to a subsidy of $7 a ton on sugar because of their exemption from the shipping laws.

HAS LITTLE SUPPORT.

The Broussard amendment calling for the conference had little support during the morning debate. In addition to Walsh and Barkley, it was opposed by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, who asserted the United States was big enough to decide the independence question for itself.

After the voting on this amendment Broussard said he would ask a decision on his proposal to levy tariff on island products.

No Tariff Better Than Bad One, Says Metcalf

Providence, Oct. 10 (AP)—Adjournment of the Senate would be preferable to passage of a tariff bill meeting the views of a Democrat-anti administration coalition, declared Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island today, just prior to his return to Washington. Whether he will move for an adjournment, however, he could not say, he said, until he has conferred with some of his colleagues.

Senator Metcalf called the action of Republican senators voting against President Hoover's desires "akin to treachery." "I cannot understand how Republican senators from states which gave Hoover big majorities, some of whom were elected upon the same ticket, can now go against him," he declared.

American Talkies Ruined in Australia

London, Oct. 10 (AP)—Mysterious and widespread tampering with talkie equipment supplied by an American firm is stated by the Sydney correspondent of the Evening News to have taken place in various parts of Australia.

A first night talking film at Sydney last Saturday proved a fiasco because of the absence of synchronization, while a similar failure took place on Monday.

Investigation revealed that a control box had been wrecked.

Other equipment in Sydney was found filled with sand, while another had the wires fused. Equipment in other Australian cities was affected similarly.

CRUSH GRAPES TO SAVE DUTY

Niagara, Falls, Oct. 10 (AP)—Because customs duty on grape juice entering Canada is cheaper than on the grapes themselves, farmers of the Niagara district are crushing their grapes in this city and transporting the juice across the bridges here, it was learned today.

Hundreds of tons of grapes were pressed today at a local plant and the juice transported across the border.

There is a heavy demand for grapes in Ontario because of the popularity of native wines. But grapes are higher in Canada than in the United States, and American farmers find a ready market for their product, James J. Flubb, collector of customs at Niagara Falls, Ont., said today.

RED SEES WAR HIDDEN IN TALK ABOUT PEACE

Toronto, Oct. 10 (AP)—William Z. Foster, Communist leader in the United States, in a speech attacked the American Federation of Labor as a tool of the employers and asserted that the Hoover-MacDonald naval reduction discussions were only camouflage for war preparations.

He addressed a meeting arranged by the Industrial Union Needle Trade Workers of Canada, held outside the city limits. The chairman explained that since a disturbance in Queen's Park last summer, police had prevented so-called Communistic open-air meetings.

The annual convention of the American Federation of Labor is being held here.

"The war danger," Foster said, "is developing because of competition between Great Britain and the United States in world markets. It is necessary for the capitalists to still objections of the masses against war. They set afloat capitalistic peace maneuvers, the Kellogg pact, and peace conferences. But the preparation for war goes on just the same. The American Federation of Labor is proven to be a tool in developing this war situation. It follows the program of imperialism."

He cited the textile workers' strikes in the South as evidence of a growing militant spirit among American workers which he said was leading to the organization of new labor unions in every industry.

The American Federation of Labor, he said, favors the skilled and privileged workers.

Driver Hurt as Train Hits Lumber Truck

Springfield, Oct. 10 One man was slightly bruised and a dozen passengers on an Athol-bound B & A. railroad train were shaken up when the train crashed into a loaded lumber truck at a grade crossing in Indian Orchard.

The injured man was Allo B. Harrington of Indian Orchard, operator of the truck.

He told the police that he did not see the train until his truck was on the crossing and that just as he put on his brakes the train struck the vehicle. The collision was so forceful that the truck with its load was turned around completely and passengers on the train were thrown out of their seats.

Mackay Takes London Barber on Paris Trip

London, Oct. 10 (INS)—British barbers, thrown into abject melancholy by the snub administered to William F. Kenny, the New York millionaire, have been vindicated by Clarence Mackay, multimillionaire American Telegraph and Cable magnate.

Kenny sent to New York for his city barber, Louis Ariea, but changed his mind when he saw what a furore his action had [illegible] and had his hair trimmed by an English barber after all.

Mackay is going down in history as the first man in tonsorial history to summon a London barber to the Paris boulevards to give him a much needed shave.

Mackay, who, incidentally, is the father-in-law of Irving Berlin, the song writer, strolled into a fashionable London barber shop and demanded a shave. According to the story now revealed the shave was a [illegible] spot of tonsorial perfection. Never, Mr. Mackay evidently believed, had there been such a shave.

Then the American magnate went to Paris, his beard and the [illegible] of Parisian barbers grew [illegible]. In desperation he sent to London for the man who had given him the wonderful shave.

6 REDS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 10 (AP)—A superior court jury convicted of conspiracy six of seven defendants arrested last August in a sheriff's raid of an alleged Communist colony in Yucaipa valley.

Miss Yetta Stromberg, who testified she was a Los Angeles college girl, and admitted a position of leadership in the camp, was found guilty of flying the red flag and of conspiracy. Isador Berkowitz, Jennie Wolfson, Ester Kepeliffe, Emma Schneiderman and Bella Mintz were convicted of the conspiracy charge alone.

New Bedford, Oct. 10 (AP)—Nathaniel W. Ladd, Pemberton sq., Boston, reported to police here today that he was jostled about by three men on the rear platform of a train he was boarding here and $385 picked from his pocket.

He said he came from Boston today and drew the money from a New Bedford bank.

VOTES POUR IN AS CONTEST NEARS PEAK

Vieing with the World's Series for claim on public attention, the Miss Majestic popularity contest approaches its closing days with even greater interest and activity than that which marked its start. Nearly 500 Greater Boston girls and women are in the race to win the title of Miss Majestic and the rewards which go with the title. Every part of the city has its favorite contestant.

"Miss Majestic" parties are being held with vote coupons required for admission. Neighborhood groups are swinging into line behind their candidates.

Vote totals are mounting, and the standing of the contestants changes with every tabulation of votes.

Dealers who are co-operating in the contest report unusual interest and activity.

BOOST FAVORITES

Dorchester, Roxbury, Malden, Winchester, Cambridge, Melrose—all the towns and cities around the Hub, are pulling hard for their favorites.

Eight ways have been provided to get votes. A vote coupon from the contest advertisements in the Boston Evening American is worth 50 votes. You can clip and send in as many as you wish.

At the Radio Show and at Majestic contest headquarters, 224 Tremont st., every visitor is given a 300-vote coupon. Present owners of Majestic radios may get vote coupons good for 500 votes from any Majestic dealer listed in the contest advertising.

THEATER BALLOTS

All who purchase tickets at Modern, Beacon or Globe Theaters in Boston or the East Boston, Scollay or Central Sq., the Dorchester, Liberty or Morton, the Rivoli, Dudley, Shawmut or Warren in Roxbury, the Jamaica in Jamaica Plain, the Rialto in Roslindale, the Embassy in Waltham will be given vote coupons good for 300 votes each.

Ballot boxes are located in the lobbies.

Each person arranging for a demonstration of a Majestic Radio in her home by one of the cooperating dealers, will be given a 2000 vote coupon.

The big vote coupons are those given with the purchase of Majestic Radios. The purchase of a model 91 or model 92 Majestic gives 10,000 votes to any contestant the buyer cares to name. The purchase of a model 181 Majestic carries 15,000 votes.

The contest director, Edmund H. McCarthy, says: "You will buy a Majestic some day. Why not buy it now and give some contestant the benefit of those big vote coupons?"

ATTRACTIVE PRIZES

"Miss Majestic" prizes include a round trip to Bermuda for herself and a companion, a complete sports ensemble from the Barbara Stone Shops, and a model 181 Majestic Radio and Phonograph combination will serve as a permanent reminder of the contest.

Second prize winner is to become the owner of a model 92 Majestic radio and also to get a complete sports ensemble.

The third-place winner is to receive a model 91 Majestic radio and an Elgin gem-studded, white gold wrist watch. Seven other valuable prizes are to be awarded.

Clarkson, Welch & Co., certified public accountants of Boston, have full charge of accounting of votes.

In connection with the contest, the Majestic Mystery Maid continues her visits to the shops of co-operating dealers and will be seen at many of them today.

Today she will be a guest of the Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion at a luncheon at Hugo's on Boylston st. She will appear in Spanish costume and, with her dancing partner, will demonstrate some of the more popular Spanish dances.

In the evening she will be a guest with contest officials at the Cocoanut Grove, where the regular Thursday theatrical night will be of exceptional interest, not only because of the presence of the Mystery Maid, but also because of the attendance of the Marx brothers and other stars.

Mickey Alpert, master of ceremonies at the Cocoanut Grove, promises some interesting surprises in connection with the presence of these celebrities.

'FURY' MOTTO AT LOUVAIN TO BE RESTORED

Brussels, Oct. 10 (INS)—The much-discussed inscription, "Destroyed by German fury; restored by American generosity," will grace the balustrade of the American-rebuilt library of the Catholic University of Louvain, it was established definitely today.

The public prosecutor has handed down a decision favorable to Whitney Warren, New York architect, in the suit he brought against Mgr. Ladeuze, rector of the university.

In his suit, Warren demanded that the inscription quoted above should be placed on the balustrade, which was discarded by the university authorities due to the furor it caused in Germany and among the Belgians also.

Warren claimed the inscription was dictated by the late Cardinal Mercier, and was not his composition. Work on the restored library was completed while discussion raged over the proposed inscription, and several attempts were made to smash the balustrade to pieces.

Warren's victory means that the balustrade will be replaced at the university's expense and will bear the mooted inscription.

Brothers Dare Death to Blast Oil Fire

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 10 (AP)—Two men crouched behind metal shields continued today to pit their skill against a gigantic roaring torch, flaming high in the air over what once was the Sinclair Oil & Gas Company's number 2 stamper well in the Oklahoma City oil field.

Dragging 200 quarts of nitroglycerine toward the 100-foot pillar of fire, and directing final connections of a battery of approximately 20 steam boilers, M. M. "Mack" Kinley and his brother, F. T. Kinley, prepared to snuff out, in one giant puff, the flame which fed by 30,000,000 feet of gas a day has whipped and writhed for hours over the Sinclair lease.

Hardly more than five miles from the downtown business district, the fire has cast a weird glow over the city's streets at night, and in the southern section of the city, three miles from the well, has made street lights almost unnecessary.

Some time today one of the Kinley brothers will creep toward the plume of flame clad in a heavy asbestos suit, place the explosives and then scurry away as the gigantic blast is fired.

CAVE MAN GLAD OF SINGLE, LEAN RABBIT TO EAT

MY FIRST "WEEK" IN THE WILDERNESS

By BURT M. McCONNELL

Copyright, 1929, King Feature Synd., Inc.

Bear-Trap Lake Portage, Sept. 29—Living the life of prehistoric man, as a Londoner might put it, is not all beer and skittles. For example, I have had but one meal in exactly four days, and that consisted of a rabbit weighing about a pound and a quarter, with no fat whatever on its carcass.

Naturally, I feel a little weak, although I do not anticipate starvation; it is always men who think they are going to starve to death who actually do so; it is always the panicky person who gets lost in the woods and goes about in a circle that usually ends in death.

My spirits soared when I saw the limp form of my first game; it meant food and, to a certain extent, clothing. It promises success, although a person cannot sustain himself indefinitely on rabbits; they are too lean.

Extricating him from the moosehide snare, which had been carefully blackened with charcoal to keep him from eating it—or even seeing it—I brought him to the shelter, skinned him, stretched the skin, and set myself the task which ended in failure a few days ago—the making of a fire with the bow-drill.

HAD TO SUCCEED

Two reasons contributed to the first failure: I had a grooved rock which did not hold the upper end of the spindle firmly and at the same time generated a lot of friction. Since that time, however, I have had a more efficient hand socket from a piece of the deer horn. Secondly, I was desperately hungry, not having eaten in more than two days. The outcome, therefore, must be successful—and it was. In 20 seconds I had created spirals of smoke, and in less than three minutes of frenzied sawing, back and forth on the drill-fire.

The rabbit was cooked, rotisserie fashion, in exactly 15 minutes, and eaten in approximately the same time. While the pangs of hunger urged me to "wolf" the little animal, half-cooked, the knowledge that my stomach, after two-days' abstention from food, might be rudely shocked and my digestive tract upset, led me to cook the rabbit completely and eat moderately. There was no disturbance.

My first meal in the wilderness would have tasted better, of course, had my wife's chicken a la Maryland recipe been used. But she was 1000 miles to the southward—in New York City—and I didn't have the ingredients.

MISSES TOOTHPASTE

Perhaps the one thing I miss most of all (except my family and friends, of course) is something which prehistoric man never had. No; not a radio; toothpaste! At that, my privately manufactured tooth powder—charcoal—is infinitely superior to some of the toothpastes I have tried.

I could name a hundred other things that I miss, but at the top of the list I should place a flat file. What couldn't I do with a file! I could make fish-hooks of the deer antlers, make needles of bone for sewing—any number of useful articles. But primitive man didn't have a file, and under the rules of this novel competition with nature and the elements, I may not have one.

Speaking of the elements reminds me that, an hour after I had eaten my rabbit, at sunset on the 27th, it began to rain. And it rained almost continuously all that night and until 4 p. m. the following day. My hastily erected shelter was not built for such a deluge; from the weather (it seldom gets above 48 degrees in the daytime) I anticipated snow, rather than rain.

PEST OF FLIES

My greatest suffering since District Forester McKibbin left me alone on September 25 has not been due to hunger or cold nights, but to the pestiferous black flies that fairly swarm about one. How the moose stand them is beyond me. Just a moment while I stop to count the bites on my legs alone, below the knee, checking them off with a pencil. . . There are exactly 243; 129 on the left leg and 114 on the right. If anyone wants to shoot at that record, they are welcome!

But there are compensations. This morning, for instance, when I awoke, the sun was streaming through a hole in the roof straight upon a spruce twig, lighting it up so that it looked for all the world like a tiny Christmas tree trimmed with tinsel. The golden-brown current of the Washimeska flashes in the sun.

SCRIPPS WIDOW RENEWS SUIT FOR MILLIONS

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 10 (AP)—The appeal of Mrs. Josephine Scripps of Miramar, Cal., from a Federal Court decision denying her claim of more than $5,000,000 in the estate of her late father-in-law, E. W. Scripps, founder of the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers, was before the United States District Court of Appeals today.

Mrs. Scripps, widow of the late James G. Scripps, who served as editor-in-chief of the group of dailies, instituted suit in the Federal District courts seeking an accounting and judgment of the elder Scripps' estate, but the case was dismissed by Judge Smith Hickenlooper. The hearing scheduled today was on her plea to reinstate the action.

The amount sought by Mrs. Scripps, her suit contends, is her husband's share of the increment accruing to her father-in-law during the management of the newspapers by the younger Scripps.

She said her father-in-law agreed to share with his sons in the profits. Judge Hickenlooper, in dismissing her suit, said the purported agreement was not legally binding as the father kept to himself the final decision on how the profits should be divided.

Mrs. Scripps is represented by Charles Evans Hughes and John Weld Peck of Cincinnati, former federal district judge. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, is counsel for Robert Paine Scripps, named in the action as trustee of the Scripps estate.

SPAGHETTI NOW CAIRO'S DISH

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 10 (INS)—While the Arab Moslems of this region of the Near East have been spending their time in campaigns against the Jews and the English, the Italians have been quietly coming in and settling in this ancient land of the Pharaohs.

This is the observation of Capt. Salvatore Viola, who has been carrying passengers from Italy to Egypt for eight years.

After the United States curbed immigration, the Italians turned to Egypt, and Cairo has become the "New York of the Near East."

The famed milk and honey of ancient days has given way to "red ink" and spaghetti.

Capt. Viola expressed belief that the fusion of the Italians and Egyptians will create a new race.

Green, Brown, Blue Are All in Mode Rollcall

Paris Bureau of the Boston Evening American

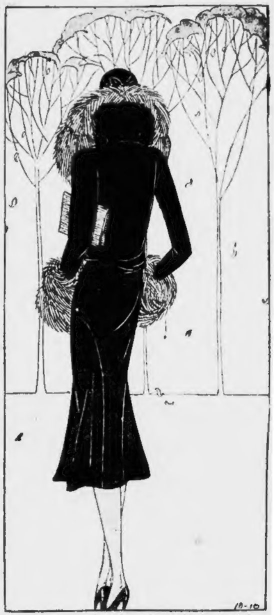
PARIS, France, Oct. 10—A dark outlook is ahead of us, rather than a colorful future. This means, of course that as the season progresses, we find that although many colors are popular, the demand is for these various hues in their darker tones.

Green, brown and blue are all present in the rollcall of the mode, but they are all in their very darkest manifestations. Mahogany brown, bottle green, and navy blue are some of the shades that predominate in the clothes designed for late autumn and winter wear in town.

Nor is there much contrast in the furs used for trimming, except that one sees red fox used on dark brown coats; gray or black astrakan are much used on blue coats, and also on the dark greens. Beautifully marked broad tail is seen on many models. It is highly decorative as well as distinguished in effect.

Maggy Rouff has shown many coats and wraps trimmed with red fox, and the model depicted here shows how effective is her use of this fur. All the coats from this house are high-waisted and many are bloused, as is this creation.

(SKETCHED IN PARIS)



It is of dark brown leda, a soft napped velours de laine. The high Medici collar and deep cuffs of red fox are in pleasing, but not too obvious contrast with the dark brown of the coat.

MAGGY ROUFF, is responsible, too, for the other model here shown. It bears the apt name of "Les Noeuds" or "The Bow-knots," for these ornaments are certainly the distinguishing feature of this attractive frock. It is of panne velvet in a most fascinating shade of blue, a shade between royal blue and purple marine—a blue that is flattering to the complexion, and as lovely under artificial lighting as in daylight, something that one does not always see.

THIS dress subscribes to the prevailing silhouette of this house. It is draped at the normal waistline, and bloused above, especially so at the back. Curving, very cleverly cut piecings form the upper part of the skirt and the flounce, cut very generously circular, is open at the front over a narrow underskirt.

JURIST RESIGNS FROM BENCH UNDER FIRE

New York, Oct. 10—General Sessions Judge Francis X. Mancuso, former chairman of the board of the defunct City Trust Company, has resigned from the bench.

Judge Mancuso announced his resignation in a statement in which he said he considered his efficiency as a judge had been impaired "in view of the fact that suspicion, just or unjust, in the public mind has been attached to the conduct of the officers of the City Trust Company."

He added that the public would conclude that he had been the victim of badly misplaced confidence in friends he had considered above suspicion when the probe ends. He termed his resignation as "a tremendous price to pay for such misplaced confidence."

Mancuso waived immunity at the Moreland Act investigation into the City Trust failure and testified he knew of no irregularities by the bank or its officers.

He was censured in the report of Moreland Commissioner Robert Moses and at the request of the Governor the Bar Association appointed a committee to investigate the jurist's part in the bank collapse. Mancuso told the committee he would appear before it for questioning although that body had no power to subpoena him.

Mancuso is the second New York judge to resign under fire in recent months. The first was Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, who resigned as a Congressional committee was about to start investigation of his conduct in bankruptcy cases.

Fall Unable to Rise, Trial Is Recessed

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Justice William Hitz today recessed the bribery trial of Albert B. Fall until tomorrow after a physician appointed by the court had reported his examination of Fall was not completed, but that the former interior secretary was unable to get up and probably would not stand trial at this time.

Won't Delay Vote on New Farm Board

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Senate agriculture committee today rejected a suggestion to postpone a report on confirmation of farm board members until the next session.

The committee, however, put off a final vote because of the absence of Senator Smith, South Carolina.

Clubwomen Establish M. A. C. Scholarship

The Massachusetts Agricultural College will be the recipient of the Helen A. Whittier scholarship of $3000, the State Federation of Women's Clubs announced through its executive board. This fund was completed last May at the annual meeting in Swampscott.

The income is to be used for a "scholarship in art applied to living," the announcement reads, and is to benefit some woman student of the college.

Mrs. Arthur Devens Potter, General Federation director for Massachusetts, informed the advisory council of women at the college of the gift from the State Federation.

Clubwomen from every part of the Bay State have made possible this scholarship. Some clubs made contributions two, three and four times that the name of Helen A. Whittier, outstanding leader in women activities and club movements, may go down in history as a pioneer worker for the opportunities afforded womanhood today.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, first vice-president of the General Federation and former Massachusetts State president, was responsible for the beginning of such a fund. She spoke for it at every club whose meetings she attended.

Last May voluntary contributions from the floor completed the fund. This fall some meritorious young woman may reap its advantages.

The Boston Young Women's Christian Association with a membership of 3752 women and with Mrs. Robert G. Dodge as president, has recently become affiliated with the State Federation.

This group of business women and those holding important executive positions had as their guest and speaker Mrs. Olivia Johnson, international president of Zonta, and manager of the Women's Department of the Great Northern Railway at St. Paul.

From practically nothing, Mrs. Johnson built up this department to the point of organizing tours for women's clubs and groups, and trains for women's national conventions.

She has arranged a fascinating trip for Zonta women to their national convention next summer at Seattle, planning concentration points where women will meet the Zonta train, and arranging special stopover trips in the wheat fields of North Dakota, and a delightful trip into Glacier Park through the "back door."

There are 92 Zonta clubs in the country with a combined membership of 35,000, all of whom are women of prestige in the field of industry and business.

ST. VINCENT'S ORPHAN GUILD

Plans were outlined at the meeting of the board of directors in the League House, Arlington st., and a standing committee appointed for the opening day of the new orphanage in North Cambridge, Monday, October 28.

Another pleasant feautre was the presentation of a tea wagon to the chairman of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Martin Fannon, by the members of the two groups. Mrs. Robert H. Triggs, president, announced the third of the series of bridge and whist parties under the directors' supervision to be held at the League House tomorrow at 2 p. m.

MELROSE HIGHLANDS WOMAN'S CLUB

At the opening meeting of the season, Mrs. Marion H. Peck and Mrs. Lena Chandler Mason reported on the State Federation meeting and Mrs. Lucy M. Steer, the Benoni Council. Mrs. Steer, club president, welcomed back the members after the vacation months, outlining the tremendous program to which Melrose women have pledged their efforts and devotion in the fall.

WAREHAM MONDAY CLUB

Seventy-five members and guests attended and enjoyed the fortieth birthday anniversary of the club, held at Pilgrim Memorial Hall. Mrs. Elizabeth Leonard decorated the hall.

Following a brief business meeting, of which Mrs. Edwin Morse, president, had charge, the birthday program was presented by Mrs. J. Watson Taylor. From a group of 12 far-visioned women, who met in the parlor of Mrs. Charles Kinney's home those many years ago, it has grown in activity and importance of purpose. The Monday Club's history was read by Mrs. Raymond Stillman, a former president.

Notable among the achievements of the club was the attainment of the first street lights in the town by the women. The club was admitted to the State Federation in 1912 and 15 years later joined the General Federation.

Mrs. Mary Warr, who made the birthday cake and the miniature clubhouse which sat on its frosty crown of sweetness, cut the delicacy with fitting ceremony and pomp. Mrs. Webster Tibbetts had charge of the serving.

STATE HOUSE WOMEN'S CLUB

Harry Reynolds, secretary of the Massachusetts Forestry Association, will be guest and speaker at the first fall meeting of this group, next Monday, at 6 p. m. Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, who has charge of the club's conservation program, arranged this part of the program. "Our National Forests, with especial emphasis on 'Alaska,'" will be Mr. Reynolds' subject.

FEAR THAT 'LOVE SLAYER' MAY TRY SUICIDE

Washington, Oct. 10 (INS)—Precautions were taken today to prevent the suicide of Dexter Churchill Dayton, 25, of Kansas City, who climaxed a "wild party" by strangling Miss Marjorie O'Donnell, 23.

After choking out her life the drink-crazed youth sat beside her body in a room in the Roosevelt Hotel for nearly 24 hours trying to "get up courage" enough to kill himself.

That a "ghost sweetheart" cost the life of the girl is the story of her sister, Katherine, with whom she lived. Both girls came here from Pittsburgh and obtained employment in the Geographic Society. A third sister is in a finishing school here.

YOM KIPPUR TO START SUNDAY EVENING

Sunday night Jews all over the country will enter upon the observance of Yom Kippur, or day of Atonement, most sacred day in their religious calendar, a day devoted entirely to prayer and meditation.

The members of every household refrain from physical work and enjoyment, as well as abstaining entirely from nourishment, not even a drop of water passing the lips.

Before the [illegible] each Jew [illegible] forgiveness of any one wronged, for Jewish doctrine teaches that the day of atonement does not atone for wrongs done to one's neighbor unless the neighbor's forgiveness is obtained, and that there is no atonement before God until atonement before man is accomplished.

On the Day of Atonement the new rabbi of Temple Israel, Rabbi Lawrence Schwartz, will preach in the temple on Commonwealth ave., and Rabbi Levi in the New Meeting House on the Riverway.

In the afternoon Rabbi Levi will speak in the temple and Rabbi Schwartz in the meeting house. There will be a children's service at both places at 12:30 noon.

During the afternoon three laymen will speak briefly on "What Judaism Means to Me."

Tells Doctors Cash Is Cure for Neurotics

New York, Oct. 10—Compensation laws have produced new medical problems arising from neuroses or nervous disorders in connection with accidents.

Dr. Foster Kennedy, professor of neurology at Cornell University, made that assertion last night to the Graduate Fortnight in an address at the New York Academy of Medicine. He said:

"Many of the neuroses we see in civil life might be called litigation neuroses. The accident is often only the peg on which the neurosis is hung. Of all remedies, financial compensation is the most speedy and the most certain in its action."

Dr. Kennedy warned against considering hysteria sufferers as malingerers and said the two are often dovetailed and come together in one mind.

FIRST ATHEIST COLLEGE OPENS

Leningrad, Russia, Oct. 10 (AP)—The first anti-religious university in the world was opened here today with elaborate ceremonies in the huge building of the House of Culture.

Named after Ivanoff Skvortzoff, pioneer atheist in Russia, the anniversary of whose death was today, the new university began its sessions with 300 students, 47 of whom were women.

The institution, its founders say, is intended to prepare a large body of anti-religionists and active propagandists of militant atheism.

In opening the university, Prof. Tan Bogoraz of the Russian Academy of Science declared that at the present time "when the church is attempting to regain its lost power in Russia" a relentless struggle based upon strict science must be carried on against religion.

POSSE HUNTING MISSING POSTAL EMPLOYE

Tilton, N. H., Oct. 10—Missing since early Tuesday morning, H. Raycroft Walker, assistant postmaster for the last 21 years, was sought today by postal inspectors, police and posses of civilians.

Postal Inspector Ralph Dakin of Concord arrived here today to take charge of the search on orders of Postal Inspector-in-charge John J. Bredin of Boston.

Walker disappeared immediately after leaving his home for the postoffice on Tuesday morning. His absence from work caused no worry, but when he failed to return home at night his wife and daughter became alarmed and notified the authorities.

ARE YOU SKINNY? PUT ON WEIGHT

Look Healthy And Rosy

Scarecrow figures are now recognized as neither healthy nor attractive. Doctors have been opposed to the reducing fad for years. And now smart men and women realize that the doctors were right. Skin and bones never were attractive, and there is always the danger of an undernourished person becoming seriously ill.

The new fashion, in smart circles, is Hoff's Malt Tonic With Iron. It brings back the roses to pale cheeks, the graceful curves to shrunken figures and, with this improvement in appearance—a sense of glorious well being, an abundant health and strength that gives the joys of life a new meaning.

Just do what other smart folks are doing—take a wineglassful of Hoff's with every meal. It enriches the blood and makes you look healthy and rosy. Also, Hoff's is the Malt Tonic that is such a powerful aid to digestion. Don't take an imitation, insist on Hoff's. Your druggist can supply you.

RHEUMATISM PAIN NEEDLESS Relief in 7 to 10 minutes

Mrs. Walker's grocer, [illegible] Chicopee Falls, Mass., [illegible]

I have [illegible] relief from the [illegible] MUSCLETONE for rheumatism [illegible] right leg and [illegible] MUSCLETONE. I have not been troubled with my ailment. My husband is also using your remedy for rheumatism and speaks very highly of it. MUSCLETONE has a lot of good merit.—Mrs. W. F. [illegible], 12 Quintard Ave., So. Norwalk, Conn.

Do you honestly want complete and lasting relief from the pains of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica or neuralgia? Science has proven these troubles needless. A new way has been found to end muscular agony and distress so amazingly speedy that it seems almost miraculous. Pain actually stops in 7 to 10 minutes and may be forgotten. Chronic cases and those unusually severe will of course require continued treatment for a while. This would be only natural. Yet often less than a single bottle is enough for complete relief even in most severe conditions of long standing.

This new discovery is known as MUSCLETONE. It was found by Dr. Chapin, a famous physician of New York. Now almost a million people have used the MUSCLETONE treatment. They learned of it entirely by word of mouth recommendation.

The amazing success of MUSCLETONE is due to the fact that it applies needed medication by means of inunction. It neutralizes accumulated toxins, absorbs them and relieves congested tissues. Pain goes. Joints become limber. Yet you take no violent drugs to upset the stomach. Nothing is taken internally. MUSCLETONE is applied directly to the part affected. Yet it is not a liniment, a "body-rub" nor a counter-irritant. It couldn't irritate a baby's skin, so bland and cool and soothing is it. It would seem that all old theories of ending rheumatism pains are now made obsolete.

We urge only that you make this test. MUSCLETONE is now obtainable at any drug store. Buy it today. Use one-half the bottle and if you are not amazed return the remaining half to the druggist and he will refund your money. The price is $1.00.

America's Sweetheart Wants to Keep Others and Self

Peggy, as she appeared in the Belaco production of The Darling of the Speakeasies.

SOME people may wonder why I am about to write down my most intimate thoughts. I have only one motive—and that is to help other girls avoid pitfalls and also to get the $1,000,000 which my diary is worth and not a cent less. Am I avaricious? I wonder. Mister what's-his-name (to whom I was married before I thought) once said to me, "Peggy, you like beautiful things." This hurt me very much and was untrue, because I married him, didn't I? But let me start at the beginning. When I was seventeen I was a poor working girl. At least, that was what the boss said when he fired me—

Hair Rats Are Gone!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Modern woman, freed of the restraint of long tresses, realizes the comfort and sanitation of the bobbed head. The shears in the hands of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE have severed the bonds of another archaic dogma.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation-No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

AUTO MAKERS LEAD SAFETY MOVEMENT

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Frequently in this column we have pointed out the demands for leaders in the fields of business and finance to assist in government. Naturally they are apt to be too busy in their own lines to assist elsewhere and many fear to be classed as "politicians." In recent years it has been [illegible] State capitals [illegible] Washington [illegible] and finance al leaders as consultants when they could not be induced to accept political posts.

Boston this week saw President Howard Coonley of the Walworth Co. presiding over Governor Allen's committee [illegible] safety. Mr. Coonley called upon [illegible] to cooperate in [illegible] safety [illegible] education rather than intimidation was the keynote of Mr. Coonley's plea.

In New Hampshire a number of [illegible] leaders have been successful [illegible] type of citizen and would act merely when they happened to be traveling the highways. They would not necessarily make arrests at all [illegible] to do so. They would warn offending drivers and would report flagrant cases. Some [illegible] leaders think reckless driving would be reduced more than 50 percent by a week of such [illegible]

* * *

The automotive leaders by [illegible] with mechanical safety devices [illegible] note Mr. Coonley have [illegible] casualties. It is a well known fact that the percentage of [illegible] has [illegible] to keep pace with the increase in automobiles and trucks, we are told.

* * *

Millions of investors buy stock in private corporations. If public financing were similarly done, it would be interesting to watch the result. And it may be necessary to devise new measures for town and municipal financing unless some of the towns and cities are better managed in the future than they have been in the past.

* * *

Imagine the scramble to buy or unload shares in New York, Boston, Chicago or St. Louis. The quotations established might tell a story of municipal management that would serve the voters if not the professional politicians at the polls.

* * *

Private corporations would speedily be bankrupt if they were managed like many of our American towns and cities. The management of a private corporation must be at least to a degree expert. The management of a town or city is too often selected because of personal popularity. If the popularity is based on ability and achievement, that is just luck for the voters.

* * *

It has been argued that the incorporated city or town is actually a corporation with every legal resident virtually a shareholder. This of course is more fancy than a fact. Much might be said on the subject. In the meantime the writer would repeat his initial warning against buying bonds of cities or towns merely because they are "municipals" and without studying the actual security back of them.

* * *

Bankers and others, first in Massachusetts, then throughout the nation, have taken up our warning, and there are already a lot of towns and cities which are either on or have passed the ragged edge of sound investment, because of brainless spending. The general showing by the Bay State and its towns and cities has been good.

* * *

When one Bay State city decided to have a "town manager," applications for the position were received from youths in distant States whose qualifications were that they had taken "courses" in some school or other. Imagine a good private corporation even considering placing its management in the hands of anyone not actually well trained and conversant with local and other conditions.

Rail Efficiency at Peak; Why Country Resists Bears

Great Market for Radio Sets Seen by Cunningham

By W. S. COUSINS

Copyright 1929 by Int'l News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—"With 10,000,000 radio sets now in use in this country and potential sales awaiting in 30,000,000 million other homes, the radio industry enters the closing of 1929, the best prepared in its history to render efficient service to the American public."

E. T. Cunningham, president of E. T. Cunningham, Inc., manufacturers of radio tubes, in thus surveying prospects in the radio industry for International News Service today, emphasized the growing field for "replacements" as well as for new radio sets in the homes of the American people. From 75 to 80 per cent of total sales of sets and accessories are going into the home where an older set already existed, increasing enormously the potential market for radio goods, according to this well-known manufacturer.

"Some time ago," said Mr. Cunningham, "the radio world discovered that from 75 to 80 per cent of its total sales of sets and accessories were 'replacements.' Hence it is that while the scope of radio prosperity is in general ratio to the soundness of business conditions as a whole, it has also in its replacement field a definite and permanent market of great extent upon which it always can depend.

"With 10,000,000 radio sets now in use in this country, it will be seen that the replacement business assures the radio industry of a market of several million new buyers. Potential sales also are awaiting in 30,000,000 other homes, in which there is no radio equipment as yet."

Mr. Cunningham points out that a decade of progress within the radio industry has brought a marvelous degree of mechanical perfection to this product. The radio sets of 1929, he declared, can well claim to give absolute reproduction of original tonal values of any type of broadcast program. Hence, he says, manufacturers have abandoned their slogan of "a better set than last year's" to that of "maximum performance."

"Added to this ability of the radio to produce life-like interpretations of what it receives from the air is the increasing excellency of broadcast programs in general," said the head of the Cunningham company. "These two phases have made the present-day radio eagerly desired in the average American home.

"In this movement, in which we say that radio has left the luxury stage to the assured position of a necessity, we find that the betterment of radio programs has been a distinctive factor. The average program of today brings something of real substantial value to every member of the family, and is constantly increasing the stands of its entertainment offerings as well as the type of artists and features placed on the air.

Mass production and greater efficiency within the industry has brought a remarkable increase in [illegible] new years back. This is a strong point in Mr. Cunningham's [illegible] of fundamental facts in the industry which has grown from an infant into a giant in a comparatively [illegible] [illegible] become a tangible necessity. The eye appeal in cabinet designing has been added to the ear appeal of the set's performance and this applies not to one or two manufacturers, but to the industry in general. Prevailing prices for radio equipment are far below those of a few years back."

"The radio industry," said E. T. Cunningham, in conclusion, "enters the closing months of 1929 the best prepared in its history to give the American public the maximum of product at the minimum of cost."

Ratio Is Better in Cotton Trade

Association of Cotton Textile Merchants reports that production of cotton goods during the four weeks of September amounted to 268,611,000 yards. Sales were 371,485,000 yards, or 138.3 per cent of production. Shipments during the month were 287,628,000 yards, equivalent to 107.1 per cent of production.

Stocks on hand at the end of the month amounted to 35,043,000 yards, a decrease of 5.2 per cent during the month. Unfilled orders on Sept. 30 were 438,952,000 yards, an increase of 23.6 per cent for the month.

Stocks on hand Sept. 30, 1929, were 17.3 per cent less than on the same date in 1928, and unfilled orders were 10.3 per cent more than a year ago. As of Sept. 30, 1929, the excess of unfilled orders over stocks on hand was equivalent to 1½ weeks production at the current rate. On the same date in 1928 stocks were in excess of orders.

Record Earnings on Tobacco Announced

Porto Rican American Tobacco Co. will show record earnings for 1929, said Pres. Toro. Sales and earnings for nine months have been consistently running ahead of 1928, and the outlook for the last quarter is likewise favorable, he stated.

"In addition to larger sales certain operating economies have been realized," he said. "These occurred principally in reduced salaries, which in case of Waitt & Bond will amount to substantial savings this year.

"The outlook for earnings from cigar sales in this country is much brighter than at this time last year."

Jas. H. Oliphant & Co.: Lowest official money rate since August last year may have real significance. Possibly it represents a turning point in credit difficulties even if loan reports today fail to bear this out. More irregularity and less activity keep speculation within bounds.

Good Earning Power for American Sugar

Earl D. Babst, chairman of the board of directors of American Sugar Refining Company, says:

"Both the melt of refiners and the distribution of refined sugar for the first nine months of the year have been on a satisfactory level. While low prices tend to increase invisible stocks, yet it is generally believed that an increase in actual consumption largely accounts for the 8 per cent increase in refiners' distribution.

"The American Sugar Refining Company is sharing in this increased business and moreover is benefiting from the extensive rebuilding program, completed with the remodeling of the Brooklyn refinery. The company is showing good earning power and net income to date from all sources is about the same as for the corresponding period of last year."

CURB MARKET ISSUES ARE WELL BOUGHT

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Curb market stocks were well bought today, as uneasiness over the brokers' loan figures, to be published after the close, gave way to a fairly confident feeling in professional quarters that the compilation would be highly pleasing. The public was wary, however, and trading was in light volume. There was still a considerable tendency to take profits on bulges.

Leading utilities made good headway, American Gas and Electric, Electric Bond and Share and Electric Investors selling up several points, while American Superpower, Allied Power and Light, United Light and Power A and Associated Gas and Electric were firm. Cities Service was again one of the conspicuous strong spots, continuing its long gradual climb into new high ground in active trading.

Insull Utility Investment sagged for a time, but rallied later. Commonwealth and Southern, which has been one of the most active issues on this market since the stock was issued last summer, was transferred to the "big board."

New York Central rights were admitted to unlisted trading privileges and heavily dealt in at 9 and fractionally higher. Industrials were generally strong. Such issues as Aluminum Co., Deere, Hires, Silica Gel and Crocker Wheeler [illegible] substantially higher.

Investment trusts and specialties were inclined to sag. Marine Midland encountered further profit taking and dipped at one time to 68, 8 points above its offering price, but then rallied. Lehman Corp., Goldman Sachs and Tri-Continental Allied were under considerable pressure. Transamerica was firm.

Oils were somewhat irregular, but Humble and Vacuum were in good demand. Mines remained [illegible] but were generally firm.

Earnings of American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co. are running about $100,000 a month, or practically the same rate as in first and second quarters of this year, when net before depreciation, depletion and federal taxes was $314,908 and $301,456 respectively. No great change above or below current rate during the rest of the year is indicated at this time.

A final 1929 profit of $1,200,000 (before depreciation, etc.) would be in most healthy contrast with similar profits of $861,158 in 1928, $260,986 in 1927, $473,743 in 1926 and $498,826 in 1925. It does not measure adequately, however, the improvement in the company's position resulting from plant rehabilitation and new underground developments. Present size prices do not permit the company to show the earning power of which it is capable.

The zinc industry has the excess productive capacity characteristic of several other lines. Unlike copper producers, however, zinc interests have not held output closely in line with demand. From 33,826 short tons in May, stocks of zinc had mounted to 53,363 tons on Sept. 30, an increase of 58 per cent in four months. Current stocks are the largest since March, 1922. Naturally the weight of these unused supplies has held prices back, and also has recently caused curtailment among some of the producers, including American Zinc. The latter is not carrying an unduly large metal inventory.

The situation may not be quite as adverse as large producers' stocks indicate. Consumers have been withholding orders in anticipation of lower prices, which have not yet materialized—and their stocks are low. At the same time, the situation is one calling for curtailment, and this course American Zinc has adopted. Current earnings are therefore not large as they might be with 100 per cent operations, and a better zinc market.

Business Ahead of 1928, Says Woodin

Pres. Woodin of the American Car & Foundry Co., returning from two months abroad, said: "Equipment business is running far better than in 1928. The company's activities so far this year are ahead of a year ago and the outlook is toward continued improvement. From present indications earnings for year end April 30 next will show improvement over previous year."

The company for year ended April 30, 1929, reported net of $2,715,174 after federal taxes, etc., equal after preferred dividends to $1.02 a share on 600,000 common shares.

New Construction in Week Shows Gain Over $2,000,000

New construction contracted for from September 28 to October 4 in the metropolitan area of New York amounted to $15,042,800, more than $2,000,000 ahead of the preceding week, F. W. Dodge Corp. reported today.

EASY MONEY IS AID TO BOND MARKET

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—[illegible] bond market extended [illegible] day under the favorable [illegible] of the relatively easy [illegible]. Gains were mos[illegible] [illegible] slight [illegible] States [illegible] [illegible] Atch[illegible] [illegible] gain [illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] New Haven [illegible] New York Central 4s [illegible] were taken on an [illegible] movement, while Denver & Rio Grande 5s, International Great Northern and Adjustment 6s and 5s gained about a point.

Armour & Co 5½s, Republic Brass 6s, Consolidation Coal 5s and International Cement 5s were strong spots in the industrial group. [illegible] few changes [illegible]

The [illegible] maximum [illegible] International Telephone [illegible] point rise in [illegible] 4½s, American [illegible] 5½s, Atchison 4½s and American International 5½s improved fractionally.

Foreign obligations were in somewhat better favor. French Republic 7s, Argentine [illegible] gations and German [illegible] Bank issues gained.

The New York Central railroad's $10,200,000 issue of 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates, offered to yield 5.15 to 6 per cent, was quickly over subscribed.

AUBURN EARNS AT HIGH RATE

Consolidated net [illegible] Auburn Automobile [illegible] months ended August 31 [illegible] $1,118,713, after depreciation [illegible] federal taxes and [illegible] equal to $6.79 a share on [illegible] 329 shares of [illegible] outstanding. This compares with $1,312,934 or $8.05 a share on 163,055 shares in the preceding quarter and $526,572 reported for the three months ended February 28.

This indicates a total net income for the first nine months of the company's fiscal year of $2,958,219 or $17.78 a share. As compared to this figure the company earned $10.07 for the entire fiscal year of 1928.

Mr. Cord, president of the company, before sailing for Europe on a hurried trip to attend the Paris automobile show, issued the following statement:

"Sales by Auburn and its subsidiaries have maintained a consistently high rate and outlook is for a continued satisfactory volume in the last three months of our fiscal year. The third quarter earnings statement includes virtually no benefit from the addition of the Cord front drive car to the Auburn line for the reason that it was not introduced until late in A[illegible] though all development and experimental expense incident [illegible] introduction of this model [illegible] written off."

Community Water Service on Curb

Common stock of Community Water Service Company, one of the few voting common stocks of a water holding company so far made available to the public, was admitted to trading on the New York Curb Exchange, the opening transaction being at $16⅞ a share, compared with a price of $15 a share at which the stock was first offered to the public a few days ago by P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc. The quotation was approximately 15 times the per share earnings and close to the book value. Subsequently the shares moved up to 17⅛ in active dealings.

Local investment attention has been drawn to the stock because Community subsidiaries serve such growing suburban centers [illegible] wich, New Rochelle, Dobbs Ferry and Hastings, while approximately half the population served by the company is within the commuting areas of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. Altogether Community units distribute water to more than 100 cities and towns of the East and Middle West. The company's total assets, as reported July 31 last, were in excess of $76,000,000 with annual gross earnings at the rate of more than $7,000,000.

Wall Street Gossip

CANADIAN National Railways week ended October 7 reports gross of $5,152,841, against $6475,013 in the corresponding week last year, a decrease of 20 per cent.

C. M. HALL Lamp Co. obtained contract from Chrysler Corp covering 1930 lamp requirements for the Chrysler 66, 77 and [illegible] lines.

PAGE & SHAW has not been sold to any company or group, Pres. O. E. Dunham states. "We are not interested in any merger," he said.

Cotton Sales Boosted 20 P. C. by New Uses

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—An increase of 20 per cent in the use of finished cotton goods for the first seven months of 1929 over the same period last year, was reported today by a committee on new uses for cotton.

The committee is composed of representatives from the departments of commerce and agriculture and the textile industry. It has received reports from the cotton textile institute on the men's clothing market, indicating consumption in that field could be enlarged.

Further, the committee is studying use of cotton bags for shipment of foodstuffs. Recently two car loads of oranges were packed in cotton bags for shipment. The committee also is observing an experiment by District of Columbia authorities in the use of cotton instead of paint for traffic markers.

Parada and two companions who were in a slight accident admitted they had divided a ginger ale bottle of home brew, but denied they were drunk.

A Romance of Love of a Girl and a Rich Man

CHAPTER 37

"MR. CRAIG? You here?"

S[illegible] came forward shyly [illegible] sweet [illegible] little girl smile upon [illegible] pretty features.

Sunshine [illegible]ed through the high windows, splashing her with [illegible] gold and making a gleaming halo of her curls.

How sweet she smelled! Like a wood [illegible] she had seen to that effect with [illegible] and toilet water and Mortimer flowers and those new [illegible] sachets Corinna had fashioned.

The young man greeted her pleasantly and then went on talking to his employer.

Seemed to be quite au fait with every point of the business.

"Have you had your hot milk, darling?" She interrupted the discourse. She came right up to her uncle's chair, looking suitably solicitous. She said to Malvey, with a little pout: "Bad boy, to bring musty old problems when the poor dear isn't fit for them!" and she leaned against Mr. Criss[well] [illegible] anxious little face.

He patted her. "Work never did anybody any harm."

Malvey thought the pair of them looked charming together. Kind and thoughtful girl. Denise Van Wyck and Mr. Crisswell seemed greatly attached to her.

She, on the other hand, was gazing now with an appreciative smile at the young man.

This was the right trend, the right turn of conversation.

She followed it up quickly. "He's my precious baby and I have to look after him." This with a light kiss on the top of his head. "You'll have to [illegible] now. I'll fetch [illegible]"

"No. N[illegible] [illegible] going [illegible] after [illegible] through these papers. But [illegible] Craig you[']ll have a cup of tea. My niece will see to it."

Denise gave him a swift, sweet [illegible]

"No. You take him into the drawing-room," said her uncle. He was remembering their previous [illegible] when she was [illegible] had she pressed her in [illegible] the young man. Best for [illegible] that. He was a worth young [illegible]. [illegible] things might happen than his a them take to each other.

So Mr. Crisswell insisted. He gave a little sign of satisfaction and perhaps of envy as the pair went off to the drawing-room. Handsome young couple. Took him back to his own youth. If Denise really had a fancy for the lad—and being his niece and such a beauty too, young Craig would surely reciprocate—he'd have to give them his blessing, and do something rather handsome . . .

The papers slipped from his fingers to his lap. His thoughts wandered. Presently he slumbered.

Curled up behind the tea-tray in [illegible] fashion on the sofa in the drawing-room, Denise was making [herself] extremely charming to Malvey.

"Uncle has taken a tremendous [illegible] to you," she was saying arch[ly]. "He's a wonderful judge of men, of course. That accounts for his many successes. He has the faculty for spotting winners . . . picking the right people to advance his interests . . ."

Malvey smiled at this sweet flattery. Pretty she was . . . much [less] egotistic than usual.

She patted the big sofa cushions beside her. She gave him smile for smile, invitingly. "You're too far off over there. Come and sit by me," she demanded provocatively.

"Uncle has taken a great liking to you," said Denise Van Wyck as Malvey sat beside her on the deep settee in the drawing-room.

Malvey smiled inwardly.

Denise believed that there is no compliment, however bare-faced and exaggerated, that a man will not swallow greedily and credulously if offered by a very pretty girl.

This [illegible] did not apply to such as Natalie de Santalvo, who was rather homely-looking. Men always suspected an ulterior motive when a plain woman served the flattery, Denise thought. Made them afraid of being "caught" . . .

"Good heavens! I've an appointment to meet Natalie at that dress-show on Madison avenue at 5," remembered Denise. Best not speak about it now, for fear the mention of an engagement might make Malvey take his leave. . . .

On the other hand, the run up to town tete-a-tete with him in the limousine would give her further opportunities . . .

He was chatting pleasantly on a variety of topics. But any moment her uncle—when he had perused that financial report to his final satisfaction—might summon Malvey back into the library.

"You must often run out here," suggested Denise. "You know I'm giving a big coming-out party. The grounds are to be illuminated . . . we're having a special open air dance platform set out under the birches . . . a band from town, of course . . . I'm thinking of a floating cocktail-bar in the middle of the swimming-pool. . . ."

He laughed indulgently. This spoiled young favorite of fortune! Only had to command, and everything came to her.

There was a subtle flattery in the fact that she was laying herself out to be especially nice to him. He felt it all the more in that Corinna had been "queer" of late.

The last two times he'd tried to get in touch with Corinna she had curtly informed him she was very busy . . . indeed, it almost seemed she was avoiding him.

An incident had occurred, too, that had upset him. That Van Tuyl fellow had dropped into the office to have a chat with Mortimer. Fragments of conversation had drifted through the open glass partition in disjointed fashion.

3-ALARM FIRE IN SWEEP OF COAL YARD

Charlestown Residents Prepare to Flee From Suspicious $10,000 Blaze

A three-alarm fire of suspicious origin early today destroyed two sheds and did $10,000 damage to the property of the Wellington-W[illegible] Coal Co. on Medford st., at the foot of Lexington st., Charlestown.

The fire threatened several other buildings in the district. Tenement houses on the north side of Medford st. were endangered by flying embers. Many families prepared to leave their homes but their alarm was without cause.

When the apparatus arrived on the first alarm the fire had got away to such a start that Chief Daniel Sennott immediately ordered a second alarm, followed by a third.

According to the police, the fire started in a vacant two-story garage formerly occupied by the coal company. The fire spread with rapidity to the coal sheds and soon all the buildings in the yard were encompassed in flames. All the buildings were vacant.

DRIVE TO CURB CENSORSHIP LAUNCHED AT FORD HALL MEETING

HARVARD LAW MAN SCORES NICHOLS

Test Cases Urged by Tufts Professor to Determine Legality of Action

Test cases to test the validity of Boston censorship of books and plays were urged by Prof. Clarence R. Skinner of Tufts College, who spoke at the meeting of the Massachusetts Civil Liberties committee in Ford Hall.

Nearly 1200 were present at the meeting, which was presided over by John S. Codman, who, with Prof. Skinner, outlined the work to be accomplished.

Prof. Zechariah Chafee, Jr., of the Harvard Law School said that the suppression of "Strange Interlude" was only one of a series of [illegible] latest intolerance of Mayor Nichols [illegible] in Boston and multitudes of respectable citizens, but Prof. Chafee declared, "they should have been aroused years ago."

Designing a prize poster in a contest requires many things besides an idea. There is, for instance, the need to make that idea vivid and appealing, to give it the color, the technique which marks poster art as a distinctive branch of illustration. Miss Middlemas' contribution won high praise for its striking simplicity, beauty of execution and originality of theme.

Charge Officials Ready to Defy Supreme Court; Stop Order on Auditor

Charging that city officials are preparing to defy the decision of the Supreme Court to make further payments to J. J. The report was also sent to Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland and to the City Council over the signature of Chairman John C. L. Dowling just before it was announced at the State House that Governor Allen had nominated Frank Goodwin to take Dowling's place.

The finance commission warned that the time period within which the city may bring action will expire on May 29, 1930, for the last payment on the contract was made on May 29, 1924, and the suit for the recovery of the money must be made within six years under the statutes of limitations.

The report pointed out that the court "perpetually enjoined the city and all its officers from paying any further sums of money on the contract."

To make sure that there would be no payment of an item amounting to over $29,000, the finance commission placed a stop order in the auditor's office.

"Furthermore, the representative of the exchange advised that it will be two months before we again have normal supplies.

PUTS HOWES IN CHARGE OF FISH

Gov. Frank G. Allen appointed Zenas A. Howes of Quincy to be state supervisor of marine fisheries in the department of conservation, a new post which was established by the Legislature at its last session.

The supervisor will have an important position, as the subject of shellfish comes within his jurisdiction and the agitation on this subject was largely responsible for the creation of the position.

Howes was born in Chatham, 54 years ago, the son of Zenas F. and Harriett Howes. He studied in the public schools of the town. For a short period after completing his education he was employed by a railroad, but he left that to enter the shellfish business.

He was engaged in the oyster and general fish business for about 25 years. He is now president of Hansen & Howes, 220 Milk st., dealers in marine supplies.

'LIGHTNING' HIT OF RADIO SHOW

Man-made lightning, as jagged as any that ever streaked across the heavens, flashed in the Boston Garden as a feature of the ninth annual radio show exhibit.

It was New England's first introduction to man-made lightning and 15,000 people, who thronged the Garden for the show, were held spellbound as they viewed the exhibit.

With a warning hum from the turned-on current, 900,000 volts flashed through the air in a zigzag path between the two electrodes, darted out in jagged tongues of blue light—cold looking but strong enough to electrify 450 men with darting jagged tongue. Yet the immaculately dressed man turned switches, touched coils and handled the apparatus as if it were a nursery plaything.

And it marked the first time in history such a great number of volts had been sent through the air in a public demonstration. Visitors to Boston's show saw a more vivid display than the first public debut of man-made lightning at the Radio World's Fair in New York two weeks ago.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"They work while you sleep"

When the bowels need help there is nothing like cascara, nothing more efficient, nothing so good for the system. Any doctor can confirm these facts.

Candy Cascarets give you pure cascara in a most pleasant form. Take one tonight. See how fine you feel all next day. Without discomfort and without harmful effects this gentle laxative cleanses the whole thirty feet of bowels. Cascarets never produce that nauseous feeling usually associated with the use of laxatives. And their action is so natural that there is no danger of forming the laxative habit. You can take them as often as you please—or give them freely to children or old folks.

A coated tongue or a laden breath is a signal for a candy Cascaret. Or a sick headache, or any sluggish feeling; any time you believe the liver and bowels are not functioning fully, Cascarets will sweep away accumulations in the lower bowel. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice, making them the ideal laxative for children.

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; the use of 20 million packages a year proves their effectiveness.

Another Charlestown Lady Benefited by Bon-Tone

Believes It Is Her Duty to Say a Good Word for the Medicine That Did So Much for Her

"After three years of suffering, the will of God drew my attention to Bon-Tone," are the words of Mrs. [illegible] Dale of [illegible] Bartlett Street, Charlestown, Mass., to the Bon-Tone [illegible] located at [illegible] Drug Store in Scollay Square,

Mr. Chas. D. Ryan
Bon-Tone Representative

Boston, where he is demonstrating this medicine daily to thousands of Bostonians. [illegible] read the rest of Mrs. Dale's statement:

"I believe it is my duty to say a good word for the medicine that has done so much for me. I had a great deal of trouble with my stomach. I very seldom felt like eating—and the little I did eat seemed to disagree with me—and often I would have to vomit afterwards. While doing my work, I was compelled to rest often on account of dizzy spells that I was troubled with. At night, my sleep was disturbed by an almost continual action of the kidneys, and my bowels were just the reverse, as I had to take cathartics to have a movement. I was advised to be very careful of my diet, because of high blood pressure, and under no condition to eat meat.

"I tried medicine after medicine, with but only temporary results—and when Bon-Tone was recommended to me, I decided to give it a trial. Before I had finished the second bottle I could feel a difference in my condition. I kept right on taking it, and now I eat heartily and everything agrees with me. In fact, I actually feel hungry at meal time. The other day I ate a steak with no bad effects at all. My bowels and kidneys are back to normal and I sleep long and sound during the night. I thought I was getting old, but since taking Bon-Tone I feel years younger.

"My husband is also taking this great medicine, and all the men where he is employed tell him he is looking fine, I cannot praise it too highly—and I really think that God has blessed this medicine."

Call or write to the Bon-Tone man who is meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston. He will tell you about other cases here in Boston that have been just as remarkable.

Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, 436 Broadway, Perkins Square, and in Cambridge at Cole Drug Store, 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square.

'CRUISING' TAXIS SCORED AS PERIL TO PUBLIC AT HEARING

'IDLE' DRIVER HAS EYE OUT FOR FARES

Mahoney Defends the "Open Stands"; Says Independent Cabbies Good Citizens

"Cruising" by taxicabs was characterized as one of the worst menaces on Boston streets and the contributory cause of a large proportion of accidents by Francis Mahoney, an insurance broker, speaking today at a continued hearing before the special commission investigating the taxicab problem.

He pointed out that the attention of the operators is 75 per cent directed to the sidewalks looking for fares. This being so, he continued, the operator could not have the safety of the public in mind if he wanted to.

Open stands, he believed, would stop cruising "and be the best solution of the problem we have heard."

Mahoney told the commission he placed insurance on between 1000 and 1200 cabs a year, and had had the hearty co-operation of the owners in getting rid of reckless drivers.

"There isn't any cab owner who wants a so-called cowboy driver operating his machines," he said. "But even with the elimination of the reckless operators and we have got rid of about 200—the menace of the cruisers remains."

In collecting the insurance premiums, he declared, he got to know the independent drivers intimately and he was convinced the police were in error when they claimed the independents did not size up to the private company operators.

"I believe that from 75 to 80 per cent of the individual cab drivers are good, substantial citizens," he said. "Most of them are married and live up to their family obligations. Many are putting their sons and daughters through college."

In New York, he revealed, the individual owner gets insurance at 25 per cent lower premium than the owners of fleets. The same situation applies to Boston, he said, insofar as the willingness of the insurance companies is concerned, on fleet coverage.

Thomas Owens, a taxicab operator for 22 years and one of the charter members of the independent association, claimed that the arguments of the police commissioner, to the effect that open stands would mean more police and a lot of trouble on the streets, was not founded on fact.

He believed the hotels, which now oppose open stands, would be better satisfied with the service under the plan.

Henry Wiseman, publisher of the taxi magazine in New England, Abe Miller, I. T. O. A. operator with a public stand in Atlantic ave., favored open stands. Miller agreed with Mahoney that "cruising" causes accidents. He contended the practice constitutes a public necessity.

ASKED ABOUT OWNERS

Charles T. Cottrell, for the Checker and Town companies, the first witness for the private companies, referred a question as to whether his companies are favored by the police to President Frank Sawyer of the Checker Company.

Sawyer said his company had applied to the police commissioner for [illegible] stands, of which 156 had been refused.

"Does that appear like favoritism?" he asked.

"Do any police officials own stock in your company?" interposed Chairman George G. Moyse.

"I invite your commission, or anyone else interested, to come to our office and examine our stock books, to see if any police official or officer or any public official owns stock," Sawyer answered.

Goat Eats Up His Profits

WORKS NO PLACE FOR A GOAT

A goat feasted today on wool waste in the rear of the New England Waste Co. plant, [illegible] ave., Revere, [illegible] waiting somebody to claim him.

George Lund, manager of the plant, saw him wandering over the marshes two days ago and staked him out for the owner, but so far no owner has arrived.

Now a goat may be an asset about the grounds of a library building, eating up all the rubbish, but at a waste plant where all the waste is profit his presence is a distinct liability. [illegible] named by Lund is eating up all the profits.

The police have been notified and will take the animal away.

FAMOUS OPERAS TO BE PRODUCED IN SOUND AND COLOR FOR THE SCREEN

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10—Why pine for a chance to sit in the diamond horse shoe at the Metropolitan Opera House. In a short time you can have grand opera at a minimum price.

The Fine Arts super productions, just formed, is planning to produce "[illegible]," "Samson and Delilah," "Il Trovatore" and "Carmen." One of these operas will be made not only in sound but in color, and "Carmen" is slated for the first. There certainly will be a race to see which producer gets to the goal first with "Carmen."

R-K-O plans to make it with Bebe Daniels, and Titta Ruffo announced only a short time ago that he was coming to this country to sing for Warner Brothers the role [illegible] Caruso sang on the stage.

Her husband, Larry Semon, died; she was asked to pay tax on money he had earned [illegible] before; she wasn't able to get the right kind of jobs, and things looked decidedly black. She went to Missouri to visit her grandmother and recover from a nervous breakdown brought on by all her worries.

FILM STARS TOP STAGE BILLS

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

ALL up—it's the lucky seventh! Stage show fans [illegible] "I Love the Films, but O You Vaudeville," have some good things coming. All the theaters featuring flesh-and-blood bills along with pictures have good things to offer for the new week. For admirers of Hollywood stars there are two special attractions, the coming of the alluring Leatrice Joy to the Keith Albee in person, for a week and the appearance for the same period of time of Wesley "Freckles" Barry at the Scollay Square. Each should prove a magnet for the throngs. In addition to the peppy "Wes" the Scollay will offer four big acts, beginning Saturday.

Wesley Barry

OTHERS on the Keith Albee program besides the lady who puts her last name in enjoyment are Dave Vine, "Just Up the Street," Jack Usher & Co., and other acts. The Girl Scout [illegible] is a special offering for Girl Scout Week.

THE presentation at Loew's State is "Children of [illegible]," an Oriental fantasy presented with a large cast with [illegible] singing and dancing and acrobatics thrown in. Crooning Jack Miller and his Stateonians will be on the job as usual. At Loew's Orpheum the headliners Monday will be Charles Stuart and Harry Lash with their "Ten [illegible]ers." Aiding them are [illegible] Powers and Loretta Fish [illegible] in a special, "Oh Doctor." The ensemble offering is a musical comedy.

AT the Metropolitan, opening today, are the Publix stars in "They're Off," a race track revue featuring George Dewey Washington, colored baritone. Other folk in the cast are Forsythe & Kelly, Adelaide Seemon, Eddie McKenna and the Fred Evans' girls. "A Musical History of America" is Arthur Martel's contribution from the console and Dave Rubinoff has a [illegible] of the ever pleasing Strauss melodies for his orchestra.

Stage Who's Who

At the Hollis Street next week Boston playgoers will see Mrs. Fiske in a modern comedy [illegible]. Having [illegible] for the past few years [illegible] Shakespearean and other classic drama, she now returns to the type of play in which she stands preeminent in the American stage.

Mrs. Fiske

In 1924 when she played Mrs. Malaprop in Sheridan's comedy, "The Rivals," Mrs. Fiske began a period in which she devoted herself largely to landmark plays. After two years in "The Rivals" she appeared in successive seasons in Ibsen's "Ghosts," "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Much Ado About Nothing" of Shakespeare, and at the conclusion of the past season she revived in New York under the management of George C. Tyler one of her greatest successes of a decade or more ago, "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," by Harry J. Smith.

VOICE IS BOON TO LA BELLE SWANSON

WITH the discussion as to how the stars of the silent screen will hold their exalted positions in the new film world of talking pictures it is interesting to note that in one case, that of Gloria Swanson, it was the voice and not beauty or ability to act that took her to Los Angeles. It was Miss Swanson's soprano that prompted her to go to the coast, not her desire to enter the films. She had studied voice in Chicago and was sent to a leading impresario in California for further instruction. It was while she was there that the discovery of her screen ability was made.

Gloria Swanson

Her latest picture, "The Trespasser," in which she sings two songs, recently had its premier in London before enthusiastic audiences and will soon be seen in Boston at Loew's State.

At 10 30 p. m. tonight Miss Swanson's voice will be heard over the Victor Hour in a national hook up of the National Broadcasting System. The broadcast will come from the New York studio and will be relayed through the Boston station WEEI. The two songs sung by Miss Swanson are "Love," a composition by Edmund Goulding, author and director of "The Broadway Melody," and Elsie Janis and Toselli's "Serenade."

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

"DIE FLEDERMAUS," the [illegible] operetta which the Messrs. Shubert have in rehearsal will flit across one of the Broadway stages on the night of October 28 it was disclosed today and the Majestic Theater probably will offer the stage.

* * *

This latter matter however is contingent on the ability of the producers to fit a revolving rostrum to the interior appliances of the house. The presentation, which is to be on a pretentious scale even for these pretentious times, requires such a contraption and before the theater is selected it will have to undergo [illegible] test. One can imagine the Messrs. Shubert lugging the revolving platform hither and yon along the Rialto, stopping at each house to have a fitting with the current stage. Of course finally they will come upon one that answers the purpose and everybody will be happy.

The Majestic will be available, if it otherwise is satisfactory, because "A Night in Venice" entered upon its final fortnight in New York last night [illegible] and, oh yes [illegible] "Die Fledermaus" will be called "Ladies and Gentlemen" when the billing goes up. Just why is none of your business.

William Harris [illegible] is [illegible] on his [illegible] for one more one night in defense of the tottering drama. His new [illegible] is the joint work of Milton Herbert Gropper and Elna Sperry and in keeping with the current fashion of plays, it will be called "Homicide."

Wilmington will see the production a week hence, in case you [illegible] about.

Only a Miracle Can Save the Cubs From Rout in Series

A'S SEEM TO HAVE TITLE CLINCHED

By NICK FLATLEY

CONNIE MACK and his Athletes are roring home today [illegible] the baseball championship all wrapped up and ready for the crate.

Joe McCarthy and his Cubs are [illegible] toward [illegible] cheerful and chatty [illegible] of [illegible] who have [illegible] the men [illegible]

Nick Flatley

But unless one of baseball's greatest miracles is put on there [illegible] days at Shibe Park [illegible] have [illegible] chance than a cripple in a subway rush.

The Mackmen smacked and flailed the Cubs in two games in Chicago and when it was all over the natives were [illegible] picking up the remains of a pitching staff that was plastered all over the scenery.

Look at the box scores and you get the tipoff on this series. Twenty [illegible] Cubs have been fanned in two ball games. Sluggers are supposed to whiff now and then, but when they make it a habit, their slug doesn't mean a thing.

The Cubs whistled through the National League on sheer power. Their right handed murderers knocked everybody off, but in this series those right handers are getting no good balls to hit.

They are being tricked and foxed and looked so bad that the home fans were giving them the Chelsea cheer as the terrible second game wriggled to a close.

The Athletics, on the other hand, have been playing ball just as they did all season. Their pitching has been extra good as the strike-out list proves, and their hitters have been hitting. Foxx, Simmons, Dykes, Cochrane and the rest have been nudging that baseball.

They have been up at the plate free swinging and loose while their dispirited rivals have been tense and all tightened up.

The supposedly great Cub pitchers, with the exception of Root, have been knocked all around. The entire scheme of things, for Chicago has gone wrong, and there doesn't seem to be anything much Josephus McCarthy can do about it.

MACKS CONFIDENT

Connie's heroes, back on their own orchard, should be irresistible. They have had their confidence varnished on by two decisive wins, and they know they can gamble and take chances, and still have the edge right down to the finish.

This day of trains and rest may help McCarthy to restore some of the shattered morale of his athletes. But the boys haven't much to look forward to. They have discovered that the Athletics can hit that baseball, discovered also that they can't do much with the Mack pitching.

The Cubs, it would appear to a casual observer, have just about resigned themselves to taking the loser's share of this series, and then forgetting all about it.

A team that has been carried along because big hitters came through almost inevitably, falls apart when those big hitters step up to be hornswoggled to death.

Unless there's a very sudden shift in the way these games are being played, it must go down into history that the A's know too much baseball for their rivals.

CUBS BAFFLED

Connie Mack showed them a lot of blistering speed yesterday, and they found themselves baffled just as they were by the tantalizing Ehmke effusions in the opener. When Earnshaw softened, after a fine start, Cornelius sent Robert Moses Grove in there, and Robert Moses made a lot of the boys blink and stagger as his fast one whizzed by.

Joe McCarthy will be forced to chase Guy Bush in there tomorrow, and Guy is a temperamental young man. With a nervous team back of him, he isn't likely to be steady. Connie can work all kinds of pitching switches. His staff is intact, while the Cubs' corps is wrecked.

Cornelius will probably pick Ol' Jack Quinn, a smart pitcher. Connie knows that smart pitching is poison to the Cubs, and knows, too, that the Cubs know it.

The tall tactician can bear down when the time comes, and this has been his constant dream for 15 long years. He has the series practically bagged now; he will bend every effort toward making it a clean sweep.

CONNIE IS MASTER

Connie has the tools to hand, and is [illegible] workman. The

"THOMAS J. Niland, successor to Dan Lane as a member of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, has always been a red hot sport fan," said Mr. Boston today.

"It is as a former baseball star that Tom Niland is known best. He started his career on the sand lots of Lynn and finally landed [illegible] Nationals.

"Niland has always been a boxing fan. He has [illegible] the present day boxers as well as the old timers.

Jack Conway

"The new boxing commissioner was a boyhood chum of Governor Allen. Their friendship has lasted down through the years. A year ago Tom Niland was Governor Allen's chief lieutenant in Lynn. The fact that the governor, a Republican, carried Lynn by 4500 votes despite an Al Smith landslide in the Shoe City proved that Tom did a pretty good job at getting out the vote.

"Tom Niland should help the boxing game in Massachusetts."

"I DO NOT know whether Dan Lane sought reappointment, but whether he did or not he has the good wishes of everybody connected with the boxing game.

"Lane has a thorough knowledge of boxing. In the days before legalized boxing, he was connected with Mish Murray, Ivey Lewis, both of whom are now dead, and Alex MacLean in the Armory A. A. For years he was a political lieutenant of Attorney Charles J. Innes.

"LANE tired of the wrangles connected with politics and decided not to be a candidate for re-election to the City Council when that body was enlarged so as to include a representative from each ward.

"Dan continued as a member of the boxing commission, but perhaps he is also glad to get away from his duties at the State House so that he can devote more of his time to his private business.

"NILAND will serve with Eugene Buckley, a member of the original commission appointed by former President Coolidge when he was governor, and Col. Foote, who as chairman of the committee of public safety holds a position on the commission.

"Buckley has been the William Muldoon of New England boxing. He is known throughout the country for his fairness and the wisdom of his ring rulings. He is fortunate that a man of the standing of Tom Niland has been selected to serve with him.

"CHARLEY CARDIO, who managed Red Chapman when the latter was rated as one of the best boxers in the world, is back on top of another fistic wave. He is managing Jimmy Picardi of East Boston, who won the New England bantamweight championship when he defeated Gene Bianco of the North End at the Arena the other night.

"I BELIEVE that even Chicago fans will now admit that Connie Mack has a pretty good ball club.

"BASEBALL MEN will also probably give Howard Ehmke credit from now on for having some 'guts.' In the opening game he proved he was anything but 'yellow.'"

Heavies Feature St. Joe's Holiday Show

The holiday feature for Saturday night will be an all-star amateur tournament in Mechanics Building under the auspices of St. Joseph's T. A. S.

This week's show will be featured by at least three heavyweight battles.

In addition to the heavyweight class, bouts are to be staged in the 160, 147, 135, 126 and 118-pound classes, and each class is attracting entrants from all parts of New England.

Laterals Are Popular

Georgetown is going in for the lateral passing game this year. The men were drilled in the lateral pass by Elmer Ripley, former basketball coach at the school.

FOXX DOUBLE CROSS TO CUBS

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright 1929 by Universal Service

FROM the eastern shore of Maryland where the canvasback [illegible] James E. Foxx, 22 [illegible] fielder of the P[illegible] Athletics.

He is perhaps the only Foxx [illegible] spelling science the spells [illegible] no one knows why [illegible] there they are, the XXs, and [illegible] take 'em or leave 'em.

The Chicago baseball fans would just as soon leave 'em. They wouldn't care for James E. Foxx of the eastern shore of Maryland with the X and two Xs make him look like the double cross to them.

'Twas James E. Foxx with both Xs from the eastern shore of Maryland who had a heavy fist in wrecking the Cubs in the second game of the World Series of 1929 which was won by the Athletics by a score of 9 to 3, giving them a two-game jump on the National League.

BREAKS CUBS' MORALE

James E. Foxx belted a home run into the left field stand with two runners on in third inning off Perce Malone of the Cubs. And while these three markers weren't enough to win for the Athletics they messed up the morale of the home boys. It was the second home run in two games for James E. Foxx with two Xs, his blast off Charley Root the day before being the turning point of that pastime.

It looks a bit tough for the Chicagoans as the two clubs head for Philadelphia and the third game of the series, unless they can induce the National Commission to let them hit at the Athletic pitching with good wide oars.

Seven of them struck out again George Earnshaw a [illegible] hander [illegible] that it wasn't a trick old Cornelius McGillicuddy set. Lefty Grove a sidewheeler on 'em and Lefty made six churn the radio waves.

That's a total of 26 whiffles in two games. It would appear that the Cubs ought to get out a search warrant and find the baseball that the Athletics' chuckers are hurling at them, although fellows like James E. Foxx with the two Xs have no complaint to offer.

ONE OF GREATS

This James E. Foxx is one of the greatest young ball players that has come up in many a day. He can play all over the joint, as the boys say. Just now he is playing quite a lot of first base. The Athletics had been shuffling him back and forth between the City of Brotherly Love and the Blue Ridge League for quite a spell before he finally got a regular job that he is likely to hold for a long, long time.

The same Eastern Shore that turned out James E. Foxx and his two X's, gave the Athletics another great ball player of other years, and another World Series figure in "Home Run" Baker, but it wasn't Baker who discovered the lad from Sudlersville, Del. It was old Ira Thomas, who used to catch World Series games for Cornelius McGillicuddy.

The noble legion of 50,000 men and women who took chances on colds, chilblains, pneumonia and other ailments to see the baseball game plodded from the exits either strangely depressed or frozen stiff. Anyway, they were very silent. Very, very silent. They wouldn't give you a dime a dozen for National League baseball clubs in Chicago, and you could offer a couple of Rogers Hornsbys in every package to boot.

It was a very cold day, my friends, a cold day for one and all, but especially cold for the Chicagoans.

Line Forming for First Philly Game

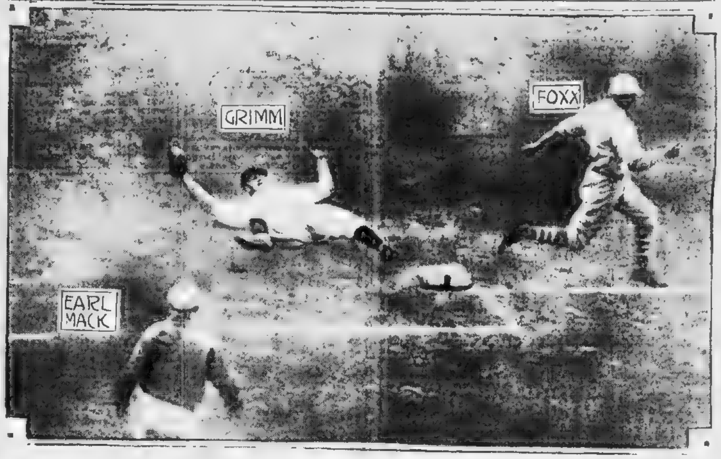
Philadelphia, Oct. 10 (INS)—The line was still forming on the right today as gleeful, carefree fans took their places in line for the opening sale of the bleacher seats to the Athletics-Cubs World Series game here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The line began forming last night, fully 36 hours before game time.

Fortified with an ironing board for a bed, a dozen sandwiches, a jug of water, and a varied assortment of packages, A. R. Tennyson, 28, this city, was the first in line. He took his post at 10 p. m. An hour later two other enthusiastic A's rooters joined him. William Pell, 26, held the second post and Dominick Pate took third place.

Governor Penn Fan

On a tour over the state, Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania stopped and watched Penn State go through its daily practise, and met each member of the squad.

A GRIMM FATE FOR A FOXX TO MEET



This unusual action photo by Associated Press shows Grimm, Cub first baseman, as he pulls away from the bag after putting out Jimmy Foxx of the A's. A bad throw by "Woody" English was responsible for position of Grimm, who had to stretch to get the ball. Foxx was just a stride late in getting down to the base.

Pessimism of Grid Coaches Due to Lazy Seniors

E[illegible] AM[illegible] S[illegible]

NECESSARY TO MAKE 'VETS' FIGHT

By BILL GRIMES

YEARS ago, it was the habit of college football coaches except those at Yale, to allow to be released glowing reports pertaining strength of their respective elevens

Today, pessimism [illegible] the middle name of every college coach in the country, and for a good reason.

Bill Grimes

Year after year reports were sent out of New Haven that the Bulldog was wrecked by injuries, that the Blue would prove easy for Harvard and Princeton [illegible] stars [illegible] forced [illegible] miraculous treatment [illegible] bring about complete [illegible] and mix up the [illegible] Tiger.

Unquestionably [illegible] and Princeton were [illegible] annual Yale [illegible]. Possibly the success of Yale [illegible] had something [illegible] with the present condition [illegible] coaches have [illegible] at least some [illegible] Yale [illegible]

GOOD DEFENSE

Although coaches have been severely criticized for the stands they have taken in sending out pessimistic accounts of their squads they have a good defense. Of course now and again a coach is feathering, or at least attempting to, his own nest when he bemoans the lack of material, figuring that if he has a successful [illegible] be recognized [illegible]. But fortunately [illegible] types are rare.

Today when a football coach belittles his chances of success it is not done with a view of cat fooling his opponents, the undergraduate body or the alumni. It is for the sole purpose of preventing as far as is within his power the development of over confidence among the player.

[illegible] team [illegible] score [illegible] players [illegible] pat them [illegible] on the back and when [illegible] other [illegible] are [illegible] or [illegible] effect.

SENIORS GET HIGH HAT

[illegible] of every season [illegible] changes in the lineup. This is especially [illegible] to his a number of [illegible] holding down regular jobs. About the time that a football player [illegible] to be a senior he is harboring the idea that the coach [illegible] the plays [illegible] position and [illegible] possibility to get the [illegible] have [illegible] playing.

Head Coach Mal Stevens announced that with two exceptions the starting lineup for the game will be the same as that which started against Vermont.

The rest of the lineup includes Marting and Vincent, tackles; Capt. Greene and Loeser, guards; Palmer, center; Wilson, quarterback; Sneal, left halfback; Miller, right halfback, and Dunn, fullback.

Stewart, substitute guard, will be out of the game for two weeks because of a shoulder injury suffered [illegible]

CREWS TO RACE ON SATURDAY

In the 150 pound crew race on Columbus Day, Technology will be represented by last year's 150 pound freshman eight, this change being recently made by Coach Haines because of the number of empty berths in the varsity 150 pound boat.

The lineup which will row Saturday are Captain Casey, stroke; Burritt, 7; Lawrence, 6; Spreen, 5; Sweeney, 4; Anderson, 3; Kirkpatrick, 2; Foster, bow; Loustaunau, cox. Bannon, who stroked this crew last year, has been declared ineligible on account of his heart.

HEAVIES MAKE READY FOR GO

Ernie Schaaf and Kayo Christner are getting ready for their 10 round bout at the Boston Garden one week from tomorrow night.

When these tremendous [illegible] clash it is expected that Hub fans will witness the [illegible] bout ever staged in [illegible]. With Sharkey coaching for Christner as the hardest puncher among the heavyweights today, local fans are anticipating plenty of [illegible] walloping.

The Garden is planning to [illegible] up the meeting between Schaaf and Christner with a card consisting entirely of heavyweights and to [illegible] the show will prove one of the most remarkable of the season. Already the demand for tickets indicates a complete sellout.

"The Colonial Soldier is Your Protection"

Colonial leads the procession

A vast Army of Motorists is Now Changing to Colonial Because of its Extra Quality at No Extra Price. "How is it possible," they ask, as they pull up to the green Colonial pumps, "to produce such a remarkable motor fuel as Colonial—better than any other gasoline sold in New England and New York State—at a regular price?"

Here is the answer. Colonial Gas is made by a New England Company — the only one that refines and manufactures exclusively within the borders of this great territory. Each drop of Colonial comes from carefully selected crude oils and is refined to a standard of quality that only Yankee craftsmanship can produce.

No "kerosency borderland" elements — so often found in ordinary and inferior gasolines—are left in Colonial Gas. It's a pure, powerful gasoline guaranteed not to injure the motor.

Look for the trim green-and-white Colonial pumps. Like the Colonial Soldier they are your protection and guarantee that Colonial and Colonial Ethyl are the best motor fuels that can be produced.

ATLAS TIRES—Guaranteed against all road hazards—For sale by Colonial Service Stations and Dealers. Mounted free.

EVERY PRECAUTION is taken at the Beacon Oil Company's great refinery to see that Colonial Gas is pure, all-power gas.

First School Grid Games at Wigwam This Afternoon

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

TWO CLASSY CONTESTS ON CARD

EAST BOSTON vs. Commerce and South Boston vs. Brighton, is the scholastic football program for the Hub today. Both games will be played at Braves Field and will be the first schoolboy contests on Tepee turf this year.

Boston Latin will meet a Harvard Class team at Cambridge in another game this afternoon. This tussle can not be classed as a regular game for either of the teams concerned since the coaches will be out on the field to instruct their charges and correct any faults that may crop up.

The tilt between East Boston and Commerce will give the Fleming clan an opportunity to demonstrate their football powers. Rumors of the Blue and Gray's strength this season have been flying thick and fast.

East Boston has veteran backs in Chiarini and Larkin. The latter's punting is a great asset to his team. Callahan and Cahill are a smart pair of ends who will worry the Commerce ball-carriers.

Brighton seems capable of going a long way in the fight for District League honors this season. The team defeated Mechanic Arts with a fine exhibition of forward passing on the part of Chick Featherstone. Dalton, a veteran end, was on the receiving end of the pass which whipped Mechanics and it is likely that he will be snaring Featherstone's slants today. Doyle is Brighton's most aggressive back and is remarkable for his fast charge which scatters the enemy line.

South Boston has Curran, a veteran back, ready to hurl against Brighton. This youth had a fine season last year and should do well in future contests.

The doubleheader today will be well attended since the fans are able to see two games for the price of one and are assured of some earnest, if not high-class, football.

Bridgton Academy of Waterville, Me., will play Lynn General Electric Apprentices in a night game tomorrow. Football at night is no novelty to Lynn fans who have been accustomed to attend them in the past.

The Apprentices have a heavy team that is likely to stop the visiting backs. "Fish" Ellis, former Tufts star, is coach of the Maine school.

If Joe Santarpio is unable to start at his tackle position for St. John's Prep on Friday, when B. C. freshmen are met, Jim Brennan will sub for the East Boston star. St. John's has had some intensive blackboard drill this week, and the team is confident of smirching the Eaglets' clean record of two straight wins.

While the St. John's Prep-B. C. Fresh, and the Bridgton-Lynn G. E. games are outstanding on tomorrow's list, there are others worthy of notice. South Boston will play Memorial high; Thayer Academy collides with Country Day; Johnson high goes to Wilmington; Belmont entertains Hyde Park; and Tufts Fresh tackle New Hampshire Sophomores.

Medford high lost a fine quarterback when Gordon Marston removed from Medford to Stoneham a few years ago. Now Gordon barks signals for the Stoneham eleven and is one of the cleverest and gamest pilots in Great Boston.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Your action of speeding up your hands in the latter half of the forward swing will bring you smack against the age-old problem in golf, the worst enemy you have to contend with—pressing. You are told not to press, but what's the use of anybody telling you that if you don't know where pressing begins? I'll tell you. As you speed up your hands in the forward swing you will reach a point where the club simply is too much for you. The action of it—its speed—is beyond you. You subconsciously realize you cannot keep up with it, so in you go with your body, shoulders, weight and everything—seeking, at the last thousandth of a second, to maybe save something out of the smashup that's about to occur. That is pressing. No need at all longer to be confused about it, for that' it. The instant you go beyond the power of your hands, you are pressing. And now and then, when you want a particularly long ball, you will bite on this pressing proposition. You'll think you can get away with it this time. Don't do it. For that long ball adopt just the reverse principle. Be easier, smoother—stroke your hands more smoothly.

M'LARNIN K. O.'S SAMMY BAKER

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Jimmy McLarnin has learned that the big fellows can fall just as hard as the little ones, if they are hit on the right spot. The young Irishman from Vancouver made his debut as a welterweight last night and his punch produced the same result against Sergt. Sammy Baker as it did against Jimmy's opponents in three lighter classes. The result was a first round knockout.

Baker, a leading contender in the class not long ago and still the possessor of a good hard wallop, never [illegible] against Jimmy's sla[illegible] one minute for Mc[illegible] a firm connection between his right fist and [illegible]. There was very little [illegible] after that. The New York veteran went down for a count of nine only a few seconds later when Jimmy slammed him for the second time and arose just to take a final blow from Jimmy's right that ended the battle in two minutes of the first round.

Akron, O., Oct. 10.—Gorilla Jones, colored welterweight, knocked out Jack Horner of St. Louis in the second round of a 10 round bout here.

McGill has always been a popular figure here, and he rules a slight favorite to take the measure of the Lithuanian giant. Pat is numbered among the foremost wrestlers in the world, on a par with Malcewicz and [illegible] and just a step or two behind Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, champion of the world.

Bob "Bibber" McCoy, [illegible] Cambridge heavyweight, will contrive to draw many a customer through the doors of the Grand Opera House. The old Holy Cross football and baseball star is to meet Joe Wagner, the Boston University law student. Wagner is far the toughest opponent McCoy has ever faced.

In the opening bout, Axel Anderson, Swedish heavyweight star, will make his local debut against Al Thomas, Syrian strongman. It is expected that the Swede will become a huge favorite here for his style is said to be sensational.

The gambling gentry have made Villanova a 7-5 favorite. These odds are quoted after the [illegible] information [illegible] the rumor [illegible] Paddy Creedon may not be able to start for B. C.

As a matter of fact Creedon may not start and he may not even get into the game. Paddy has been pretty quiet about the condition of his tricky left ankle. He was hoping that it would mend before the time for the Villanova clash.

CREEDON AILING

Coach Joe McKenney kept him on the bench during the Maine game and thought that this rest would surely make Creedon right for Saturday's conflict. But the Eagle leader's ankle still maintains its zeppelin proportions and doesn't give any signs of returning to normal size.

With Creedon out the backfield would be the same as started against Maine with Joe Mitley at quarter, Chris Antos and Joe Shea at halves and John Marr at fullback. This quartet proved a strong aggregation against Maine [illegible] probably won't function so [illegible] against Villanova with Creedon in there.

McKenney is still working with Mailey as a [illegible] He's afraid that Creedon may not get [illegible] showed plenty of ability in his first [illegible] quarter and no doubt can call signals and direct a team as well as the B. HEAVY bed clothing is not necessarily warm. Wool is the best, and the purer the wool the warmer the blanket. Wool blankets have the added advantage of lightness in weight. Two single blankets are warmer than one of double thickness.

BEAUTY OF GRACEFUL SHOULDERS AND ARMS

Plays Important Part in Woman's Appearance

By MARIA JERITZA

HER shoulders and arms play a most important part in the ensemble of a woman's appearance. There are many occasions, as for instance at the theatre or a dinner party, when her neck, shoulders and upper arms determine almost entirely the effect of her figure. If they are softly rounded, graceful and statuesque she gives the expression of beauty.

Feminine shoulders should not be square and military, but should slope gently from a rounded slender neck to symmetrical upper arms. Posture has much to do with this contour of neck and shoulders. The woman who humps her shoulders or slumps them cannot possibly retain long the lovely outlines of her body. An ugly bunch of fat is likely to form across the back of her neck at its base, giving her an aged look. Her shoulder blades will stick out sharply.

Working at a desk or over a sewing table without active physical exercise is likely to result in round shoulders, just as it is likely also to result in large hips and this largely because of faulty posture.

Here is an especially valuable exercise for adding symmetry to the upper arms and shoulders. Borrow your brother's walking-stick or for that matter use your own or else cut off an old broom handle.

Stand straight with your weight near the balls of your feet, your neck and [illegible] and grasp this rod with both hands holding it before you at waist height. Now without loosening or changing your grasp on the rod, lift it over your head and down to your arm's length in back. Next lift it back to waist height in front. All the time the elbows should remain unbent.

Repeat the exercise twelve or fifteen times. Doesn't it give a fine pull to the muscles of your upper arms and shoulders? It has a good effect also on the upper back and sides of the chest and bust.

Try this exercise every morning to improve the posture and contour of your shoulders. Stand erect but bend slightly forward from your waist with your arms straight out at your sides, palms turned up. Now circle your arms forward ten times, [illegible] straight, [illegible] shoulders as pivot. Then circle them backward in the same manner twelve times.

If you practice the exercises I have described faithfully and [illegible] minutes every day, you will find them refreshing and great fun, and also they should add to the symmetry and grace of your arms and shoulders. Until your upper arms become really lovely, you will, if you are wise, always wear at least the semblance of a sleeve, whether it be a mere cap at the shoulder or a touch of graceful drapery. For upper arms that are not symmetrical are anything but ornamental.

By daily exercise and care you can, however, bring your shoulders and arms up to your standard of beauty.

Getting Feeble-Minded

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., PH. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

CRETINISM is a curious condition that affects both the body and the mind and is likely to render the individual so afflicted definitely feeble-minded.

It is caused by an absence or deficiency of the thyroid gland which is one of the so-called "ductless" or endocrine glands of the body and is situated behind and rather below the Adam's apple.

LOUIS E. BISCH

In a typical case of cretinism the head is large and square-shaped. The nose is broad and flat. The eyes are wide apart. The mouth is likewise wide and the tongue is thick, broad and decidedly "beefy-looking." The whole stature of the body is stunted. The neck is short, fat and thick.

The skin is dry and rough and often scaly. There appears to be too much skin for the size of the body and it looks wrinkled. Legs are short and often bowed. Hands and feet are thick and short. All in all, the cretin presents anything but an attractive appearance. Yet if the cretin be fed thyroid gland he may improve to a remarkable degree.

To be sure, the earlier the treatment is begun the better. Furthermore, such treatment must be carried on for months and years, for thyroid is as necessary for a cretin's well-being as is food to an ordinary human being.

In fact, thyroid extract is food. All glands of internal secretion should be considered in this way rather than as chemical formulas or drugs.

Mentally the cretin may rank as low as an idiot. Then again the intellectual status may be that of an imbecile or of an even higher grade, the moron.

There are cases, indeed, when the deficiency of thyroid in the system is not so marked as to present striking cretinous features, yet where the mentality is retarded and where thyroid extract will stimulate physically and mentally to a remarkable degree.

The disposition of the typical cretin is one of indifference and general contentment.

Emotion is at low ebb. It is very difficult to rouse interest in such a person or even to make him angry.

Affection, however, is present in many cases and a certain degree of pleasure can be elicited at times.

In the treatment of these conditions the question is one of how much thyroid to give. Too small doses do no good. Just the proper amount must be worked out by direct experiment with the patient in question and this can only be done by a physician and best by one who is expert in feeble-minded states.

There are certain sections of the world where cretinism is common. Such districts are to be found in Switzerland, in Burmah and Madagascar, in the Himalayas of India, in the Andes and in the Rocky Mountains.

Every now and then new localities are being discovered where cretinism flourishes. Besides there are many so-called sporadic cases to be found everywhere.

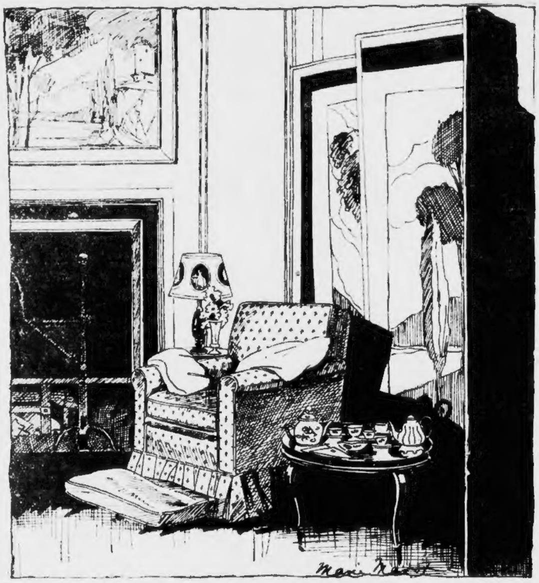
A Cozy Tea Corner—By Marie Marot



TEA for two on a chill autumn afternoon is about the most pleasant thing in the world. Particularly when one can partake of it in such a setting as the one shown here.

The afternoon tea is becoming more and more an American custom, and we may well thank our English cousins for this delightful institution. With this thought in mind, the hospitable hostess wants to make her tea table as attractive as possible, and place it in an atmosphere of restful charm.

This corner by the fireplace has been beautifully utilized to great advantage. The walls of the room are tinted an exquisite ivory. The chair is in old gold, as are the pillows, carrying, however, touches of brown in soft contrast. The landscape on the screen is against an old gold background. The tea set on the low mahogany table is in fragile white china, and forms a stunning contrast to its surroundings.

Good Advice to a Lonesome Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of nineteen and want to have a little pleasure, but I am not allowed out of the house, only to work and back. I am not allowed to have any company at the house, only the ones my parents like, and they are a lot older than myself. Will you please advise me as to how I can have good times?

S. G.

HAVE a very friendly, affectionate talk with your parents, my dear, and explain to them that you are lonesome for the companionship of young people of your own age. Ask their permission to invite younger friends home to meet them. Ask also to be allowed to go out now and then to a movie or party or for a walk with friends of whom they approve.

Your parents, of course, are trying to do what is best for you and are guarding and protecting you as their most loved and precious trust. So work with them and I am sure they will do what they can to make you happy. A girl of nineteen really needs the companionship of worthwhile young people of about her own age.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have great faith in your writings, therefore, I am anxious for you to answer these questions:

I have kept steady company with a young man for three years. I am two years older than he is. Shall I keep on? I think the girl should be younger.

How can I prove his love for me besides his telling me?

ANXIOUS.

I AM glad you have faith in me, my dear. You may be sure I will try to help you.

The two years difference in ages between you and your sweetheart need not make the least difference, even though you are his senior, provided you are congenial in every other way.

But three years is a long time for a young man to monopolize a girl's attentions and devotion without proposing marriage. A proposal of marriage, is, after all, the only proof of his love.

Unless he asks you in the near future to be his wife, I would suggest your going about with other friends as well. For if a young man intends to propose, he does not often wait three years.

The Truth

ABOUT THE REWARD OF OBSERVATION

By ELINOR GLYN

WHEN I talked of freedom in my last letter, I meant freedom from so much etiquette and the effects of custom. But, girls, you must also remember that we should have no standards to measure by if the civilized world had not passed through succeeding stages of enforced tuition.

The great spirit of modern democracy should therefore be grateful, not resentful, towards the past for having undergone the anguish of evolving models of art and beauty. We can now profit by them and go on evolving art and beauty as great and costly, but produced by well-paid craftsmen.

We are simply being stupid and showing a chip on the shoulder when we inveigh against Kings and Potentates, who spent public money cruelly in their day, but who have left us such magnificent examples of loveliness to inspire still greater efforts now when all oppression is being relegated to those past days.

I want, you, girls, to draw good from everything by training your critical faculties to see what is worth while, and recognize it as such.

I was passing down a small side street yesterday, when I saw a hat in the window of a tiny shop, marked, what would be in American money, two and a half dollars! It was exquisitely chic, and with a "movement" which is in my new autumn models from Reboux!

I instantly realized these was genius in the hand which had fabricated it, and discovered that it had been made by a little girl of seventeen—the sole work-girl in the modest establishment!—who had once seen a Reboux hat and observed its expression, then used her own talent in the same direction, and yet with personal note all her own.

Cooking Hurry-Up Meal

BE it ever so well managed, every home must consider the hurry-up meal. In the Fall of the year, when mother's club work commences, these emergency meals seem to appear more frequently than during the Winter months, and often the children and father are left to prepare the meal alone.

Martha Lee

What shall we eat? That's the first question to be answered. Chops or steaks, potatoes and a salad are quickly prepared, but this is an expensive type of meal and one in which the average budget cannot stand much indulgence. But there must be some sort of hurry-up meat, is your next query, and then it is that QUANTITY MEATS HELP YOU SOLVE YOUR COOKING PROBLEM.

These canned meats are prepared under the supervision of government inspectors and carry Uncle Sam's stamp of wholesomeness. Always look for the "U. S. Inspected and Passed" label when you are buying meat products, you will find the statement on the side of the can.

In many instances the meat may be removed from the can, heated, and is ready to serve, or may be thoroughly chilled, sliced and attractively garnished on the cold meat platter. These meats have the "home made" taste and appearance that we all like so well and offer to the homemaker at a nominal cost tempting variations, otherwise impractical.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

HURRY-UP SUPPER DISH

And here's another recipe your family will enjoy:

Boil potatoes until soft, enough to meet your family requirements, drain and mash, season with salt, pepper, butter and mix to a fluffy consistency with hot milk. Beat well. In the meantime place a can or two of Vienna sausage in a pan of hot water and thoroughly heat; open the cans. Pile the mashed potatoes in a mound in the center of a platter and flank with the hot Vienna sausage. Serve with horseradish or mustard sauce and a crisp vegetable salad.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE

Cut into eighths a medium-sized head of cabbage. Put into a saucepan, almost cover with boiling water and bring to a quick boil. Then open a can of canned corned beef and add the contents to the boiling cabbage, continue cooking for about 10 minutes, and you have a real dish of corned beef and cabbage. The kind about which "Dinty Moore" of comic fame dreams. The sweet mild flavor of canned corned beef adds a tastiness to the cabbage that would require hours of cooking and watching were the dish prepared from the raw product.

CORNED BEEF HASH

Easy to prepare and very delicious is this home-made corned beef hash dinner. Chop the contents of a can of corned beef with an equal quantity of cold boiled potatoes (leftover), add 1 small onion, minced, and 1 tbsp. minced green pepper, ¼ tsp. black pepper and salt to taste. Mold into small round shapes, make a depression in the center of each, large enough to hold an egg. Place the molds on a greased tin and heat thoroughly in a 400° F. or hot oven. Then break an egg into each depression, return pan to oven and continue baking until eggs are set. Serve with a tomato sauce made by heating a can of tomato soup or make your favorite sauce. Serve with a combination salad and 8-minute cooked cabbage.

Child That's Different

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

THERE is a little lad who lives near me, whose mother many, many times a day informs him (and every one within a radius of a block) that he is very bad, and very, very naughty.

I get a pretty good chance to observe the child, and the worst thing I have been able to discover about the youngster is that he does not follow the usual behavior pattern of the average child, that he does at frequent intervals something SURPRISING, something DIFFERENT! His mother gets him all settled in his sandpile, but he won't "stay put." He is presently galloping up and down the alley, heroically speeding to a make-believe fire, or digging up earth on the alley edge for a trench for solitary warfare. And for these, and like offenses he is a "naughty, bad boy."

The mother isn't unique in her hasty verdict of "badness." Since the beginning of time, the masses have eyed with suspicion any person who had the courage to step out from the rest of the herd and be original. If you are different, you can comfortably depend upon it that the "neighbors" are whispering that you aren't just what you should be. Things that don't conform, things that are daring, things that folks don't understand are always "bad."

And because little lad next door won't make sand pies when he is told to, won't use the slide when the other children are doing so, but prefers to originate and execute interesting play projects of his own, he is constantly "naughty."

So if your child doesn't conform, doesn't always do just what the average child would do under the circumstances, don't tell him he is naughty. The chances are he has a more active brain, more originality, more ingenuity than his playmates. He may be different, but let's progress beyond the mid-Victorian stage of accusing a human being of being bad just because he stands out from the general run of people.

They are difficult to understand, but it is exceedingly worth while, and pays big dividends to the patient, loving parent who tries to help them instead of setting himself against them with the cry, "You are bad, and naughty."

If you ask me, I shall make the statement that I don't believe there is a really naughty child on earth, in the sense of sitting down and maliciously planning to do something which will annoy you or hurt you. A child is too busy. The world is too big and interesting to waste time in vindictiveness, if he ever had such an idea. He may annoy you unintentionally, and can be gently and lovingly made to respect your rights, and his social obligations.

There aren't a lot of "naughty, bad" children on earth, but there are hordes of MISUNDERSTOOD children who are called these meaningless and absurd names.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To test milk stir it and pour it into a dry tumbler. Then dip into it a clean steel knitting needle. Withdraw and hold vertically. If water has been added to the milk, what is on the needle will run off at once and leave no film—or but the barest trace—behind.

Diluted with warm water and rubbed over raw meat and fish vinegar is an excellent safe-guard against flies, while a little added to water in which vegetables are steeped will kill insects.

Easy by BEATRICE BURTON Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL"

CHAPTER 46

AT one minute before three o'clock that afternoon Ann Marie walked into the white marble coolness of Mr. Lawler's bank.

The first person she saw was Johnny.

He was standing in the middle of the floor, talking to old Mrs. Henderson who had the reputation of being the richest woman in town.

He did not see Ann Marie until she brushed against him. "I came to see you," she said in a half whisper as she passed him.

She had barely reached his big mahogany desk in the corner before he was beside her.

"You came to see me? — Well, I'll be jiggered!" he said, a broad, bright smile lighting up his face.

He pulled up a chair for her and they both sat down . . . This was the old Johnny of the pre-Alice days who sat before her, grinning at her in his friendly, boyish way.

"Well, this is certainly fine! To have you come dropping in the way you used to!" he told her. "We were pretty good friends once upon a time, weren't we, Ann Marie—Well, what did you think of Alice and Neal eloping. That was one on us, wasn't it?"

He laughed as if it were a great joke.

"Yes, that was one on us, Johnny," she said. "It was one on me, at any rate . . . I haven't had much time to think it over, though, or even to cry about it. I've been so worried about something else. Johnny, did you ever hear about 'a friend in need'?"

"Sure—sure," said Johnny. "'A friend in need is a friend indeed.' Isn't that it?"

"That's it," she answered. "And Johnny, that's what I want you to be today to me, if you can."

The bank was almost empty now, and the doorman was locking the front door. Sam, the colored man who had worked there for years, was pulling down the green blinds across the big front windows.

"I want you to do me a favor," said Ann Marie. "I want to know if I can borrow a couple of thousand dollars from this bank. Do you think you could arrange it with your father?"

Johnny seemed to be thinking this over for a long moment. Then he shook his head.

"Well, no, I honestly don't think I could get the Old Man to lend you anything," he said at last. "You see, your dad is up to his neck in debts here—and my Old Man is sore as a pup at your family. He has been ever since Howdy gave Florence the run-around—and then when Alice started fooling around with Neal and we split up!—Well, that was the finish—No, I don't believe anybody named Macy could get a loan at this bank, Ann Marie!"

He took out his watch and began to play with it . . . . Ann Marie looked at it thoughtfully. It was a thin platinum watch, fastened to a slender platinum chain.

And on one of Johnny's fingers was a massive ring of smooth platinum set with a big diamond.

"He has more than two thousand dollars in his bank right this minute," thought Ann Marie, "enough to keep Stella from knowing all about Howdy and Leota Ingram—enough to keep us all from being disgraced—and robbed."

For that was what Leota's threatened suit really was. Robbery and blackmail . . . And Ann Marie knew it.

"I'll tell you what!" Johnny said suddenly, struck by a thought that made him smile contentedly to himself. "Maybe I could fix you up with a loan—with some of my own money. What do you say about getting into my car and taking a drive somewhere to talk it over?"

• • •

Simond's road-house was deserted at this time of the afternoon.

There was not a soul in sight when Johnny drove his big roadster between the gates of the court-yard and stopped in front of the steps that led to the screened porch.

And in the dining room, where once upon a time Neal Forsythe had stolen a German-silver coffee pot for the girl of his dreams, there was only one waiter on duty.

He was standing at the window with his back to the room when Ann Marie and Johnny came in . . . He turned, and Ann Marie recognized him. He was the same old white-haired waiter from whom Neal had taken that little silver pot on that long-ago afternoon!

"I hope and pray he won't know me!" she thought as she sat down opposite Johnny at a little table near the door.

"Ice and ginger-ale," said Johnny, giving his order. "Lemonade for the lady."

He grinned at her cheerfully when the waiter had gone.

"I still remember that you don't drink, don't I?" he asked. "You were my girl a long time, weren't you, Ann Marie?"

He leaned across the table and touched her folded hands with one of his.

"Well, now, let's get down to business," he said. "You want me to lend you a couple of thousand dollars—and I think I can."

Ann Marie gave a long, keen sigh. She felt as if someone had lifted a weight from her heart. A weight that had been there ever since Leota sat down in the hammock couch on the porch last night.

"Johnny," she said, "I don't know how to say 'Thanks' to you. I never would have dared to ask you to do this. . . . I'm borrowing it for the whole family, and I'll see that you're paid something every week—"

"Wait a minute! I want to talk to you first — before we settle all this," Johnny broke in with a laugh.

Then suddenly he sobered. The smile went out of his eyes and they were very grave as he held Ann Marie's eyes with them. Once more his hands went out and covered hers where they lay clasped at the edge of the table.

"You don't want this money for Neal and Alice, do you? he asked. "You folks aren't trying to set them up in housekeeping or anything like that, are you? — Becuase you know you can't afford it. And they wouldn'a appreciate it, anyway. At least, Neal wouldn't. His mother has been supporting him for years up there in New York — "

"Oh, no, no'— Let's not even talk about Neal," said Ann Marie, and she began to tell him her story. The story of Leota and Howdy—of Leota herself—of Leota and Neal Forsythe.

"And she just can't start anything with Howdy now," she wound it up, "because of Stella. Stella isn't well—and the shock of all this might kill her. It wouldn't do her any good, at any rate. And that's why I've just got to have this money. See?"

He said he did see.

"And I think I see something else pretty clearly, Ann Marie," he added. "You wouldn't have come to me at this time if you hadn't liked me pretty well, would you? You do like me, don't you, Ann Marie?"

"Of course I do!" She could say that with perfect honesty. She always had liked Johnny Lawler . . . But she never had loved him, and she didn't love him now.

"You care a lot more for me than you think you do," he said to her, pressing her hands as they lay under his on the table. "And I've always loved you, Ann Marie. I never would have looked at Alice if you'd treated me decently."

Ann Marie had nothing to say in answer. She was completely flabber-gasted. . . . All she could do was to sit and look at him.

"And that's why I'm willing to lend you the money," Johnny's voice swept on. The voice of the triumphant male. "If you're in trouble it's my trouble, too . . . If your family is going to be kept out of disgrace, I'm glad it's my money that's keeping them out of it. Because your family is going to be MY family some day! Ann Marie, you know you care for me . . . You've proved it today."

Ann Marie went on looking at him, spellbound.

"If I'd married Alice I never would have been happy with her," he said, "because I'd have wanted you every time I looked at you. And you'd never have been happy with Neal—"

"No. That's true!" she had found her voice at last. "Because I wasn't happy when I was in New York, living right next door to him! I was the most unhappy person in the world—But listen to me a minute, Johnny. You've misunderstood me."

She got up from the table and put her hands behind her back.

"I came to you today to borrow the bank's money, not yours," she said clearly. "You refused me the bank's money and you offered me yours. But I can't take it except as a business proposition . . . Johnny, you know I'm not in love with you—I think you're fine and I like you but—that's all!"

He sat silent, taking that in, for a long time.

"Won't you lend me that money — just as you'd lend it to a man — and let me pay you back?" she asked.

He thought that over for two or three minutes.

"No,' he said finally, "I won't. I'd do anything for my girl — but I'm not handing out any favors to the Macy family today or any other day, thanks!"

She couldn't believe that he had said that at first.

'You mean that you'd lend me the money if I were in love with you?" she asked. "And you won't lend it to me because I'm not in love with you? — Is that it?"

"You said it," replied Johnny.

Ann Marie shook her head.

"I wouldn't have believed anyone could be so hard," she said.

She came back to town on a bus, alone.

"I'd rather walk than ride with you today, Johnny," she told him bluntly, when they came out of the inn. "I wouldn't get into your car if it were the Chariot of the Sun."

It was half past six when she turned into Pleasant Street. And the first thing she saw as she rounded the corner was her own car standing in front of the house . . . the honeymoon car of Alice and Neal.

They had come back!

A Kiss for Corinna

Malvey couldn't help overhearing the name of Corinna Dugan mentioned more than once.

Some party was afoot.

Was Corinna like all the rest of women, who could be weaned away and dazzled by cold cash?

Hadn't he rather neglected her of late, what with the press of business on the Stock Exchange, his evening classes, not forgetting that party at the Countess de Santalvos? Maybe Corinna had a right to be a little cool to him . . .

Denise snuggled down into the sofa near him, one exquisitely stockinged leg dangling, the other foot tucked cozily beneath her in little-girl fashion. She looked extraordinarily young.

"Are you fond of horseback riding?" she was asking him. "Because I've two gees down here who are simply eating their heads off for lack of exercise—my grooms complain a lot about it—its's lonely for me taking a canter on my own —and I'd be glad of your company."

"I used to ride a lot when I was a boy," said Malvey simply. "But now I haven't got the time, or—" —honest—"the money to afford it."

"You could borrow Mortimer's togs any old time." Her eyes ran over him in swift approval. "Mortimer's so darn lazy he won't go in for even the mildest sport."

Just at that moment, Gieves, the butler, opened the drawing room door, and in the aperture appeared none other than Natalie de Santalvos.

At the unwelcome interruption, Denise could have slain her so-called friend!

"Ha! ha! You here?" giggled the intruder, rolling her small and near-set eyes at Malvey, archly. "Thought you were one of the world's hard workers, and not a squire of dames!"

He flushed and rose immediately. He would make his excuses quickly and get away from the house.

So, after greeting her, he said: "If you'll pardon me I'll go in to Mr. Criswell now and get those papers—" He pulled out his watch and added: "I'll just manage to make the 3:45."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," exclaimed the brazen Natalie, putting a predatory hand on the young man's sleeve. "I shall be frightfully offended if you run away whenever I arrive. You came to my party, and now to entertain me for a little is only 'tit for tat.'"

TWENTY-SEVEN Killed by Automobiles in Massachusetts in One Week

CONVICTS in a Western prison stage a revolt, fire the prison buildings, kill FIVE guards and throw their bodies from the windows, and the Nation has something to talk about for days.

In Massachusetts, TWENTY-SEVEN persons are killed by automobiles in a single week, all but five of them PEDESTRIANS, and people shrug their shoulders and turn to the World Series.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles calls it "frightful carnage." Captain Parker does not exaggerate.

It is a "challenge to every individual in the State," Governor Allen writes to the Governor's Committee on Street and Highway Safety, "and if we are to prevent these frightful accidents to any considerable extent it is essential that we have the co-operation of all the people of the Commonwealth."

We do not know that either Registrar or Governor has the power to do more than express the common opinion of the State under the circumstances, but we do know that law-abiding folk are asking whether anything is to be DONE about it.

So far, TALK.

What the public should be demanding is ACTION.

While the Registrar and the Governor were writing, the courts were in session. Let us see what was going on in that direction. These reports were printed in the evening of Tuesday. They could be multiplied ten times without leaving the eastern part of the State:

MALDEN—Francis J. Lang of Lynn was fined $15 and $100 for drunk and operating, and a companion had a drunk charge filed and was fined $10 for allowing Lang to drive the machine. Coming upon a manhole where telephone men were at work, Lang drove over the open manhole and bumped into the work car.

MALDEN—Lemuel O. Spooch, Jr., of Stoneham, aged about 19, was fined $25 for tipsy driving and a charge of drunkenness was filed this morning.

MALDEN—Frederick W. Heagers of Medford was found guilty and fined $15 for drunk and $100 for operating. He appealed. Heagers was arrested on the Fellsway at 12:15 a. m. The officer said he was operating his automobile zig-zag.

MALDEN—George M. Wallace, Medford, was charged with intoxication, operating his car while under the influence and going away after an accident without making his identity known. He paid fines of $15, $75 and $25.

WAREHAM—William Ramzik, charged with operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, was bailed in the sum of $200 for his appearance on Thursday. The officer said Ramzik was driving on Main Street at a speed of 40 miles an hour, the car swerving from side to side.

Well, there you have one of the CHIEF causes of our trouble.

The man in the cab of a locomotive, with steel rails to keep his engine where it ought to be, is submitted to all sorts of tests before he is licensed. He MUST be a teetotaller.

ANYONE may have a license to drive one of these other engines, and BAD liquor—mostly raw alcohol—is as plentiful as water.

"It is TIME," Mr. W. J. McDonald told his associates on the Governor's Committee, "that the people of this State should get behind some movement which will produce something more drastic than $100 fines."

It is time—and it is high time—that the drunken driver should in every case be given a jail sentence and never again be permitted to drive an automobile in Massachusetts.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Picking pockets is almost a lost art in the metropolis. Even among the million at Coney Island on the last Fourth of July not a leather was lifted. They used to pick up a dip every hour in the subway. A trained squad of detectives rode the tubes for this purpose.

Trained Fagins who taught children purse snatching with uncanny neatness on the lower East Side have vanished. In a Bleecker st. cellar for many years was a Pickpocket College, where masters trained youthful fingers to nimbleness and sent them out on the streets.

Many things contributed to the passing of the dip. The subway was his paradise. In the roaring compactness, jostling was unnoticed and the confederate could shut off the victim's view with a newspaper. But the pickpocket squad was so effective the game became too hazardous.

An arrest did not always mean just a ride to headquarters. Subway crowds found a fiendish delight in "ganging" a trapped pickpocket. Before he could be taken off the car, he was often booted, gouged and given a taste of sabotage. Indeed two narrowly averted lynchings.

Another reason was that New Yorkers became wary. Only professional gamblers carry big sums of money any more and they travel with armed body-guards when "heeled." A bank discovers that about 90 per cent of their patrons carry blank checks and not more than $20 in cash.

But the biggest check to this branch of plundering was in the flowering of easier and less dangerous rackets. The rapscallion whose agile fingers could spot and extract the hefty wallet found he could turn his talents to a far greater profit in forging checks.

So old-timers lost their cunning and there were no young novices to carry on. Bootlegging came to the land and the lads who might have turned to poke pinching found something far more productive. They did not any longer have to be police-hunted "rats."

I've had my pocket picked twice in New York—once on the rear platform of a street car and another time while graciously holding a match to a perfect stranger's cigar. And you know what? I walked along with him for three blocks afterward.

Another high spot for pickpockets in better days was the Aquarium in Battery Park. Here came wide-eyed innocents to gawk at strange fish in glass cases, and so lost did they become in the ichthyological display they were stripped of all possessions from purse to fountain pen. Today the first thing to attract the stranger's eye is, "Look out for pickpockets!" Yet for months not a pocket has been picked there.

Fourteenth street, with its array of yokel traps—dime museums, shooting galleries and peep shows—also offered a field for light fingers, but not any more. Fourteenth street has, with a bang, "gone Broadway." It shimmers like a torrent suddenly bursting its sluices. A one-time shabbiness is tesselated with ornate movie facades, brightly lit cafes and gaudy specialty shops. Even famous old Luchow's, which languished in purplish gloom after prohibition, now blooms with sparkling life. And foaming steins!

Fifty thousand small wage earners in New York are only able to meet expenses by working extra and on Sunday. And yet on half the amount they could enjoy peace and comparative plenty in the so-called hick town.

The "city minded" existing in such town-trodden despair are like Bruin in the fable. For 10 years the bear paced back and forth in a 10-foot circus wagon. Released into a large bear pit in a zoo to roam at will, it spent the rest of its life turning back and forth in a 10-foot space. Social workers find that once poorly paid city folks cast off shackles for a small town they rarely come back. But the difficulty is inducing them to make the break.

Writes C. E. T.: "It would help when you make historical references about New York to give facts and figures."

The idea is to make you look them up, silly, so you will remember.

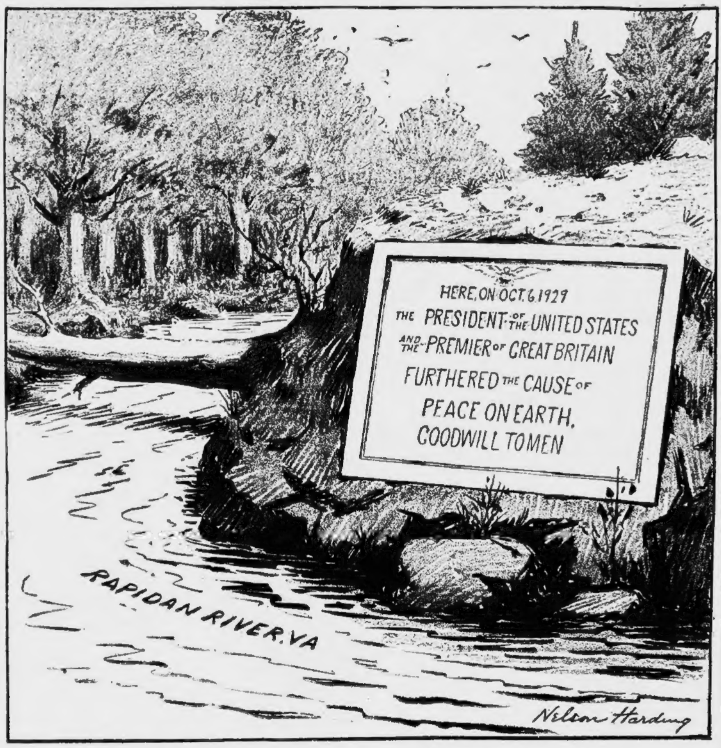
Another Historic Spot

By Nelson Harding



On an Autumn Sabbath morning,
By a river in Virginia
Where the clash of arms once sounded,
But where now reigns peaceful silence,

Rulers of two mighty nations
Walked beside the unvexed river
And conferred, in high endeavor,
To promote the good of mankind. —N. H.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

LOBBYING in these assorted states is no novelty under the sun.

America started with a lobby when General Gates staged a cabal against Washington when George was throwing snowballs at high hats at Valley Forge.

Lobbying is the only branch of government service in which you get your pay in advance.

The first lobbyist grabbed his glorious citation by infesting the lobbies of legislative garages. We knew many of the lobbyists down in the District of Columbia twenty years ago.

Their work was rough and man's around 1914. We have seen a lobbyist grab a senator by the lapels and do the giant swing.

Many of those 1914 senators are now dead. Or have met a sadder fate by being defeated in the primaries.

Those were the good old days before we got into the scuffle of the hemispheres. The lobbyists were so thick they had to march four abreast.

There was one bird down there who was trying to get a law over that would compel soldiers to wear paper shoes.

There seems to be no civil service test for young lobbyists. It is an incognito industry without signatures and receipts.

Suppose that you wanted a law passed that would force lightning bugs to wear their tail lights in front.

Thirty-six State Legislatures would have to sign this bill before it could be vetoed by the President. You hand a million dollars to thirty-six lobbyists, and tell them to step forth and barbecue the fatted calf.

Like barking at the moon, lobbying is a war in which there is no retaliation.

A certain man promises to do a certain thing for a certain sum. That's the reason this country is so uncertain.

If you want to make sure of your son's career put him in the diplomatic service.

He will make good after he has taken singing lessons in the whispering gallery.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I OFTEN think of a fine hour I once had. I had been tramping over the mountains and night found me still 10 miles from my mine, so I made camp.

It was pleasant sitting there by my little core of fire with the night stretching around me like a great tent and the smell of coffee and bacon mingling with the sharp odor of the breathing earth. Very quiet and peaceful it all was—

Presently an old prospector wandered into the circle of light. We had never seen each other before, but that does not matter in the mountains. He fished some hunks of corn bread out of his pack, I divided the bacon and coffee. For a long while we sat eating, resting after the hard day's tramp.

Then he lit a pipe, asked for a piece of rind to oil his boots and began to talk. In chance words at first . . . grunts and reminiscent chuckles . . . then in a steady stream. Talking becomes a luxury when you're cut off from it, weeks at a time.

Of course, he talked about himself. He was, I judged, about 60 and he had considerable to say. One could tell by the simple, detached way he told it that most of it was true. He'd gotten past the time when a man needs or wants to show off. He was telling his life as if it were a story he'd heard.

It had been a rough life. He'd been married twice. One wife had divorced him, one he had deserted. He had lived with another woman for six years without marriage. A good sort, she seemed, but one day he'd gotten restless and moved on. He had been a hobo, up to the usual hobo rascality.

Once, when he was still young, he had killed a man. Or he supposed he'd killed him. He hadn't waited to see. He had become frightened and ran away. That was in Australia. He had never gone back.

But he'd done some good things too. He had homesteaded a quarter section in Canada and farmed decently and steadily for some years. He had helped build a ship. He seemed to like the memory of that better than anything else. A ship was a fine thing to help build.

These incidents he told quietly, between puffs of smoke. Some of the incidents were pretty funny, some were fine, some were quite shameless. But he told them all in the same way. He did not analyze them. He made no excuse for them. They were things that had happened to him . . . they were part of the unwinding of HIMSELF. He could not explain why they had happened or why he had happened. It was all a mystery. He simply let me look at the picture.

And, under the spell of that hour, I accepted his story exactly as he told it. Usually, I have decided enough notions about things, but it did not occur to me to judge this man. He was a stranger, passing by, and that was his story. He had a right to his story. He had made it and he would pay the price for it and get the good from it.

That was all his business, not mine. If he could not comprehend why he had done things, how could I? Why should I try? . . . Well, then, that was all there was to it. He ate my bacon and I ate his bread, we talked awhile, then slept and in the morning shouldered our packs and went our separate ways.

Often since it has come to me that life would be quite a different affair if we could all take each other that way. As strangers, stopping for a while, then passing on, each with his story—EACH WITH HIS MYSTERIOUS RIGHT TO HIS STORY.

Trotters of the Globe

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

ONE of the curious and passionate desires of the human race is to move rapidly. The sensation procured is that of danger and power. Men love speed, war and women because, Nietzsche suggested, they are dangerous.

Be that is it may, speed and war, at any rate, indicate conquest, the vanquishing of difficulties, the overcoming of obstacles. They enhance man's sense of his godlike origin and of his almost divine powers.

For centuries, people have been vying with each other in the effort to travel around the globe.

A little more than four centuries ago, Magellan left Seville, Spain, and travelled around the world in three years and 29 days.

Half a century later, Sir Francis Drake beat Magellan's time by about two months. And so the great steeple-chase has gone on through the centuries.

A few years after Drake's circumnavigation of the globe, Thomas Cavendish set up a new speed record—beating Magellan by 11 months and Drake by about nine.

DURING the '70's of the past century, the entire world was reading with avidity the fascinating travel romance of Jules Verne, the French scientist and fictionist, entitled "Around the World in Eighty Days." On their journey, the typical Londoner, Phineas Fogg, and his amusing French valet Passpartout, made a 20,000-mile sprint on a wager.

Every known form of effective conveyance, fast and slow, were pressed into service—railroads, steamships, yachts, carriages, sledges and even elephants. But all apparently to no purpose—for they returned a trifle too late, according to their own calculations. But they had overlooked one fortunate circumstance: that in travelling from west to east they had gained a day.

AIR navigation ushered in a new era in record-breaking for world-circling. The round-the-world fliers in United States Army airplanes traveled 26,345 miles in 363 hours of actual flying. The whole story has been fully told by Duffus, even to the remarkable achievement of Wells and Evans, who traveled alone 20,000 miles in elapsed time of 28 days, 14 hours, 36 minutes and five seconds—the delays costing them about 65 hours and 30 minutes.

Last year John Henry Mears cut this time to 23 days, 15 hours, 21 minutes and three seconds.

Everyone now knows the time of the latest record of the monumental Graf Zeppelin, the giant dirigible, piloted by Dr. Hugo Eckener, 21 days, 8 hours, 26 minutes!

The Arabs

How They LOOK. How They FIGHT

(Copyright, 1929)

A YOUNG FIGHTING BEDOUIN AND A 16-YEAR-OLD ARAB GIRL

SINCE the murderous outbreak in Palestine there has been much interest in Arabs, particularly the Bedouins, most savage of the Semitic branch of the human race.

Living in the desert, moving about rapidly from place to place, on camels and horses, living in tents, the Arabs, through centuries, have proved themselves uncontrollable.

The Arabs have had possession of Palestine, including the Holy City of Jerusalem for 1300 years. They mean to CONTINUE in possession, and resent the fact that Great Britain has promised the Jews protection for a homeland there, although that does not involve depriving the Arabs of their own rights, or of the land's ownership.

The Arabs, fierce Bedouins especially, looking back to the days of their glory under the Caliphs, who conquered, ruled and almost had the whole of Europe in their grasp, consider themselves a superior race.

They resent the fact that Jews from foreign lands are allowed to colonize Palestine. And they resent especially the fact that these Jewish Zionist colonizers are eminently SUCCESSFUL, restoring fertility to lands exhausted, building up industry, eliminating disease and greatly increasing the prosperity of the Arabs themselves.

The pictures in this column will interest many that may ask themselves, "What kind of people ARE these Arabs?"

BEDOUINS ON A KILLING EXPEDITION

The upper picture shows a typical young fighting Bedouin of the Ruala tribe in Arabia, and a good-looking young sixteen-year-old Arab girl of the same tribe.

In battle the smiling face of that young Bedouin changes. An expression of cruelty and ferocity replaces that smile.

It is impossible for those that do not know the Arab fury to realize what the recent massacres in Jerusalem were like.

The second picture shows a group of Arabs starting on a raiding party. Robbery is the motive, primarily. Murder is usually a necessary part of the expedition.

The Arabs ride on swift camels, leading their highly prized Arab mares, to save their strength. Approaching the enemy, the Arabs change from camels to swift Arabian horses and make their murderous attack.

However, fortunately, the day has gone by when camels and swift horses, ridden by Arabs with sharp Damascus blades and primitive guns, can offer any real menace to civilized Europe.

One or two airplanes with bombs with gas and explosive bombs would dispose of a whole army of Arabs like these.

Or one armored tank, spitting fire and bullets, could roll through ten thousand Arabian camels and mares with the greatest of ease.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

By HELEN ROWLAND

A NEW husband, every few years, seems to mean no more in the lives of some women than a kiss in Hollywood.

The kind of man who will never admit his faults is not half so hard to live with as the kind who will never stop bragging about them.

If you are looking for happiness, don't marry a man before his character has jelled, his youthful conceit has been boiled down, and his heart has stopped doing flip-flops.

You can usually spot a good husband by the worn edges of his pockets and his habit of looking at his watch.

Many a man's library is filled with unread books, that he bought because the little saleswoman had "that kind of eyes"—and an old mother or a baby to support.

The average man's habits are like potato bugs; you can't eradicate them; you can't ignore them. You've just got to learn to love 'em.

Love is an emotion, about which most men are curious at 20, critical at 30, cynical at 40—and charmingly credulous at 50.

Women's frocks are getting back to the normal waistline; but the men have been fooled so long by the constantly moving waistlines that they probably won't remember how to embrace a girl in one of these.

Aren't men wonderful! They have invented airplanes, submarines and radio—but they are still looking for something which will keep a collar button, a garter buckle and a suspender button from slipping its moorings.

Many a man cannot afford to marry, because, on an average salary, it's practically impossible to support both a wife and a speakeasy.
